Fox Cities Need Many New Public Buildings

Regional Plan Commission Report Cites Facilities Needed in Area by 1985

BY REINY WESSING
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Major building projects for education, government administration and police and fire protection will continue at an enormous pace during the next 25 years in the Fox Cities communities, a report to the executive committee of the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission says.

Recommendations for future public buildings and facilities are contained in the eighth report issued by the commission, and prepared by its consultant, Kenneth L. Schellie and Associates, Indianapolis.

The executive committee accepted the report Thursday but did not formally approve it. Two sub-committees which are reviewing specific portions of it have not completed their work. Approval of the report was postponed until the commission's quarterly meeting on Dec. 11.

Recreation and library facilities, too, will have to be expanded to accommodate the burgeoning population, according to the report.

Civic or municipal centers are proposed for Appleton, Neenah and Menasha.

An earlier report by the commission estimates that the region's 1985 population will be 214,000. It now is estimated at about 130,000.

Facilities Needed

Here is a summary of the public facilities the commission believes will be necessary by that time to take care of all those citizens.

Nearly 40 new elementary schools will have to be built in the region, which includes all the cities, villages and towns from Kaukauna to Neenah. Ten more junior high schools will be needed and two senior highs, not counting the one that already is in the thinking stage in Appleton.

(A site already has been purchased for the proposed second senior high in Appleton. The commission makes no attempt to estimate how many of the new schools will be public and how many parochial.)

One indication of why so many new schools will be needed is that the commission estimates about one-fourth of the region's entire population will be of school age. Another reason is that the schools are proposed on optimum standards of pupils per room and rooms per school, thus avoiding overcrowding.

City Halls

New city or village halls are recommended for Appleton, Neenah, Combined Locks and Kimberly. Kaukauna's will serve adequately through the planning period, the report says, as will Little Chute, if the police department is moved to separate quarters. Menasha's planned expansion of city hall offices into an adjacent building will make it adequate, too.

Police stations in Appleton, Kaukauna and Little Chute will need to be expanded, the report says. Neenah's new station may need expansion. Menasha will need to replace and relocate its station. Kimberly's will serve adequately, but Combined Locks will need a new one.

Appleton will need a new central fire station. The outlying stations will serve well, but more will be needed. Neenah is advised to replace and relocate its central station, and to retain station No. 2. Menasha and Combined

Strike at Lockheed Brought to Halt but Dispute Continues

Labor Leaders Won't Quit Fight for Union Shop Vote

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and its aerospace workers today went back to work—and back to the conference table—after a brief strike was ended at least temporarily.

Government intervention halted picketing after two days. But union leaders vow they'll strike again if demands for a union shop vote aren't met.

The company says it won't weaken its firm stand against the vote.

A special presidential committee set up under the Taft-Hartley law scheduled its first meeting today to look into the months-long contract squabble.

Hearings Planned

The committee planned first to study written reports it requested from both management and labor. Its chairman, Prof. Arthur M. Ross, of the University of California Industrial Relations Institute, said he also wants to hold oral hearings.

Picket lines from Honolulu to Cape Canaveral, Fla., quickly dissolved Thursday as strikers ended their walkout at the request of President Kennedy.

A day earlier he had invoked the Taft-Hartley law, clearing the way for a possible injunction against further immediate strikes. Lockheed claimed the strike was relatively ineffective. The union on the other hand said 97 percent of 55,000 possible union and non-union employees stayed out of work halting vital missile and plane projects.

Dispute Not Ended

Secretary of Labor T. Willard Wirtz said in Los Angeles he was satisfied with the prompt action of the IAM in withdrawing pickets around the nation. The union ordered its members back to work, but left little doubt it expects continued trouble in negotiations over the central issue—the union shop proposal.

The presidential committee must report its findings to President Kennedy by Monday.

The union could strike again at its expiration.

An earlier presidential committee in the six-month-long aerospace dispute recommended the issue be put to a vote by all the firms in the field.

North American Aviation, General Dynamics and Ryan Aircraft went along, and their employees failed to give it the two-thirds majority necessary—although they did give it a simple majority.

Kennedy Leads Culture Drive

$30 Million Goal In Crusade Begun At National Capital

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy led a big closed circuit television audience on the beginning of a $30 million culture crusade Thursday night.

He told the nation that when the dust of centuries has passed the United States "will be remembered not for our victories and defeats in battle or in politics, but for our contribution to the human spirit."

He was joined by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, tuned in from Augusta, Ga., in a non-partisan appeal for funds to build a national cultural center here "A mecca for art," Eisenhower called it. He said it could give everyone who comes to Washington a better appreciation of America.

No Frontiers for Art. Kennedy opened the show—an extravaganza of the arts from ballet and drama to concert stage, Negro spiritual and poetry, all dominated by the artists.

He said "as always, art knows no national boundaries" and "genius can speak at any time and the entire world will hear."

But hearing was a big problem at the huge National Guard Armory, where a sellout crowd of 5,000 paid $100 for dinner and the show. Despite elaborate acoustical plans, much of the audience had trouble hearing throughout the program, which ran 45 minutes over its scheduled two hours. By the time the telecast ended at 12:12 a.m., more than half of the armory audience had departed, including Kennedy's sister and

U. S., Soviets To Continue Talks on Cuba

No Indication of Progress on Other Issues in Cold War

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan have agreed that the United States and the Soviet Union will continue negotiations for a final settlement of the Cuban crisis.

But their lengthy White House conference failed to yield any evidence of progress toward agreement on other critical East-West issues.

The President and Mikoyan met for more than three hours late Thursday. U.S. officials had hoped the meeting would produce evidence of change in Soviet policies on arms control, or other global problems, in the wake of the crisis over Cuba.

No Surprises

In this hope, they were apparently disappointed.

White House sources said that from the U.S. point of view the meeting did not provide any surprises—that Mikoyan's discussion of Soviet policies produced nothing of a new or different character.

Mikoyan, who just spent three weeks in Cuba, told reporters as he left the President's office shortly before 8 o'clock Thursday night.

"We had an exchange of views with the President on questions of interest to both our countries, chiefly about Cuba. As a result of this conversation, we agreed to issue certain instructions to our representatives in New York—we to our negotiators, and the President will instruct his negotiators—to continue negotiations to finally settle the Cuban question."

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the two men had agreed "that, as a followup of this meeting, the conversations would continue in New York between Ambassador Stevenson, Mr. McCloy and Mr. Kuznetsov."

Young Murderer Goes to Gallows

LANSING, Kan. (AP) — Lowell Lee Andrews, the "model boy" who said greed led him to murder his family four years ago, died on the gallows today.

In his signed confessions, Andrews said he killed his father, mother and sister because he wanted his father's 240-acre farm and $1,800 in a savings account.

But the utterly senseless violence of his crime cast doubt upon this motive. Using two guns, Andrews fired 24 shots. Seventeen bullets hit his father, William Andrews, 50. His mother, Opal, 41, was shot four times. His sister, Jennie Marie, 20, was hit three times.

Hoffa Parts With His Legal Council

Detroit Paper Tells About Bitter Words Near Courtroom

BY GAVIN SCOTT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters President James R. Hoffa and George S. Fitzgerald, his legal counsel and friend for 27 years, have parted bitterly in the midst of Hoffa's $1 million conspiracy trial.

As the prosecution rested its case Thursday following six weeks of testimony by 29 witnesses and featuring 263 exhibits—the Detroit News said in a copyrighted article that Hoffa fired Fitzgerald, who is from Detroit.

Fitzgerald's firing, the News said, followed a heated exchange last Monday between the men outside the federal courtroom here.

Called as Witness

Fitzgerald, under subpoena as a potential witness in Hoffa's trial, told the jury on Monday he swapped his personal check for $15,000 to Hoffa in return for a dividend from Test Fleet, a trucking firm involved in the trial, made out to Hoffa's wife.

Fitzgerald testified the transaction was made at Hoffa's request and that the latter offered no explanation.

The News quoted Hoffa as telling Fitzgerald: "You're all through! Turn in your books and records. And you'd better start thinking about the $75,000 loan."

The News said the loan purportedly had been obtained by Fitzgerald from the Teamsters Central State Conference, of which Hoffa is president.

Fitzgerald, who has been a

Wisconsin to Get $43.9 Million in U. S. Road Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department has announced that Wisconsin will receive $43,902,038 for highway construction in the fiscal year which begins next July 1.

The department said Thursday that an additional $237.5 million of federal aid had been apportioned to the states. This completes the administrative chore of parceling out more than $3.5 billion of federal highway funds for the fiscal year.

Under the program Wisconsin will receive $9,484,657 for primary roads, $6,690,955 for secondary highways, $4,588,651 for urban roads and $22,972,775 for the interstate system. The federal government pays 90 percent of the cost of interstate express roads and 50 percent of the costs of the other highways.

Child Falls Through Ice Near Home, Drowns

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Paul Wisniewski, 18-month-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Wisniewski of suburban Greenfield, drowned Thursday when he plunged through thin ice on a small pond near his home and fell on his face.

Authorities said that the infant drowned after he apparently chased a football onto the ice while waiting for his father to come home.

The boy was found in water only about one and one half feet deep by his mother. Dr. Wisniewski applied artificial respiration, but was unable to revive his son.

Out of Bed Briefly

Vatican Reports Pope Makes Good Recovery

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII is making a good recovery, with medical treatment "obtaining the hoped for results" in his battle against anemia, a Vatican communique said today.

The 81-year-old pontiff got out of his sick bed briefly again this morning and "occupied himself with some problems regarding the government of the Church, giving the relative dispositions," the statement added.

It was the second time he had been able to get up since he was stricken Tuesday.

Vatican sources said the Pope's doctor was concerned, however, that he was rushing things in his determination to get back to work. "As soon as he feels a bit better, he wants to get out of bed," Dr. Antonio Gasbarrini was quoted as saying. "It is difficult to keep him there."

There were widespread—but unconfirmed—reports the Pope has a stomach ulcer.

Dr. Gasbarrini was quoted by the Milan paper Il Giornale as denying "speculation the Pope suffers from cancer of the prostate."

Dr. Gasbarrini, 80, was quoted as explaining about the pontiff's condition:

"Certainly he is prostatic. Everybody is at his age, including me. But there is absolutely no cancer."

Il Giornale also said Gasbarrini denied that surgery was contemplated. There have been reports in Rome papers—and among sources at the Ecumenical Council of prelates meeting in Rome—that the Pope might have to be operated on for a long-troublesome prostate condition.

German Vessel in Danger of Capsizing

BOSTON (AP) — The Coast Guard reported early today the German motor vessel Erwin Schroeder is heeled over 15 degrees and is in danger of capsizing about 900 miles east of Cape Cod.

The Coast Guard said the vessel was bound for Rotterdam from New Castle, New Brunswick, loaded with copper concentrate. The stricken ship reported its cargo lashed and shifted, causing the vessel to heel over.

Mikoyan's Past Filled With Acts Of Treachery

Deputy Soviet Premier Took Part in Hungarian Revolt

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The name of Anastas I. Mikoyan, First Deputy Premier of the Soviet Union, is again in the headlines. He is received by President Kennedy with dignity and forbearance. But how much do the American people know or remember of the misdeeds and acts of treachery committed by Anastas Mikoyan in the crushing of the liberties of the Hungarian people just six years ago this month?

Mikoyan is an emissary of Premier Khrushchev, so, as is customary, he is received by high officials of the government of the United States. But can his word be trusted?

The game of deception played by Anastas Mikoyan in the past is written plainly on the pages of history for all to read. In Oct., 1956, a new government was established after the anti-Communist revolt in Hungary. On Oct. 31, it took up with Mikoyan in Budapest — where he had been sent by the Kremlin — the question of the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary. This Mikoyan promised would be done.

President Eisenhower in a radio and television talk on the same date said with respect to an announcement by the Soviet would consider withdrawal of its government on October 30 that it troops from Rumania and Poland, as well as Hungary. "If the Soviet Union indeed faithfully acts upon its announced intention, the world will witness the greatest forward stride toward justice, trust and understanding among nations in our generation."

Additional Units But what happened? Not only were the troops retained in Hungary, but additional units of the Soviet army poured in from Rumania and on Nov. 4 attacked the Hungarians. The anti-Communist movement was wiped out by overwhelming Soviet forces. The Hungarian delegation "negotiating" with the Soviets on the "withdrawal of troops" was imprisoned, and its leader later executed, the new Premier, Imre Nagy, was arrested, deported to Rumania, and subsequently executed. Hungarian appeals to the United Nations were of no avail.

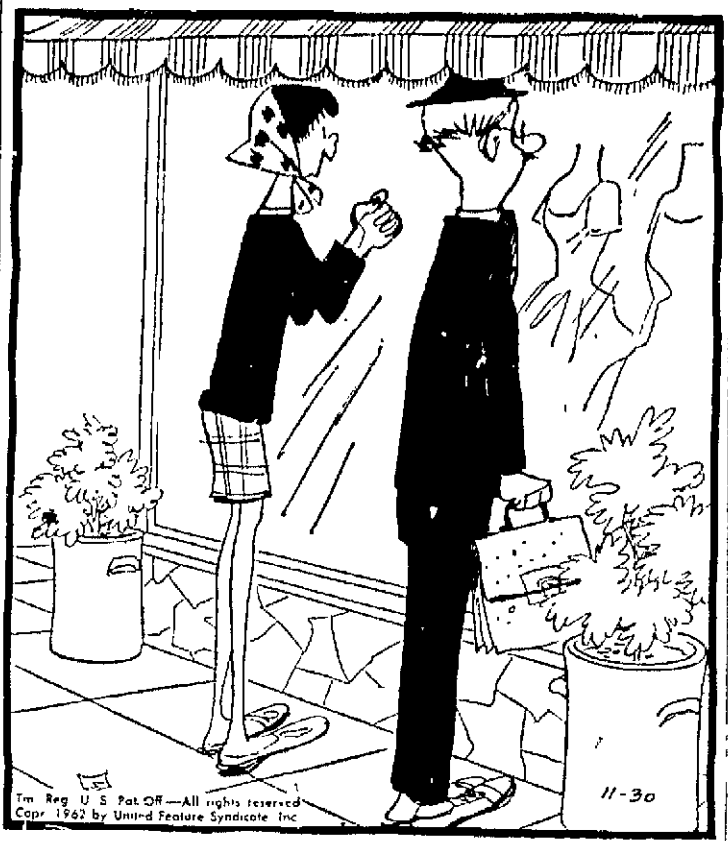

The U. N. Security Council had met on Nov. 2 to discuss the "critical situation in Hungary." Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev blandly assured the council that reports of a Soviet march on Hungary were "utterly unfounded."

Immediately after news of the Soviet attack on Hungary was received, the Security Council met again on Nov. 4. A resolution was introduced by the United States condemning the Soviet attack and calling for an on-the-spot investigation by the U.N. of the situation in Hungary. It was vetoed by the Soviet government, and one veto is enough to kill such a proposal. The measure was passed by the General Assembly, but the Soviet government — which, by then, was in full control in Hungary — refused permission for any commission to enter the country. None has ever gone there.

This is the sad story in which Deputy Premier Mikoyan played a principal part. He was then — as he is today — a tool in the game of the Soviet government. He does what he is instructed to do, irrespective of whether it requires giving pledges that will not be kept or asserting facts that later prove to be false.

Soviet Deception Just a few weeks ago — on Oct. 22 — President Kennedy, in a nationwide radio and television address, told the world of the deception that had been practiced by the Soviet union in connection with the missile build-up in Cuba, including the fact that Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko had come to the White House and had lied to him. Mr. Kennedy said:

"The size of this undertaking makes clear that it has been planned for some months. Yet only last month, after I had made clear the distinction between any introduction of ground-to-ground missiles and the existence of defensive anti-aircraft missiles, the Soviet government publicly stated on Sept. 11 that, and I quote, 'the armaments and military equipment sent to Cuba are designed exclusively for defensive purposes,' that, and I quote the Soviet government, 'there is no need for the Soviet government to shift its weapons for a retaliatory blow to any other country, for instance Cuba,' and that, and I quote their government, 'the Soviet union has so powerful rockets to carry these nuclear warheads that there is no need to search for sites for them beyond the boundaries of the Soviet union.' That statement was false.

"And, Dad, I'll pay back every penny I owe you soon as you raise my allowance!"

Offensive Build-Up

"Only last Thursday, as evidence of this rapid offensive build-up was already in my hand, Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko told me in my office that he was instructed to make it clear once again, as he said his government had already done, that Soviet assistance to Cuba, and I quote, 'pursued solely the purpose of contributing to the defense capabilities of Cuba,' that, and I quote him, 'training by Soviet specialists of Cuban nationals in handling defensive armaments was by no means offensive,' and that, 'if it were otherwise,' Mr. Gromyko went on, 'the Soviet government would never become involved in rendering such assistance.' That statement also was false."

Now Deputy Premier Mikoyan is under instructions from Premier Khrushchev, just as was Foreign Minister Gromyko when he visited the White House. Can anything Mikoyan says be believed? As of today, the United States has no assurance that on-site inspection in Cuba by the United Nations will be approved by the Mikoyan-Castro-Khrushchev team.

Women Are Granted Divorces

OSHKOSH — Divorces were granted Wednesday to two Twin Cities couples by County Judge Herbert J. Mueller.

Irene A. Miller, 39, was granted a divorce from Richard L. Miller, 37, both rural Neenah. Custody of the couple's two children was granted the mother.

He was ordered to pay $20 a week support and $15 a week alimony. There also was a property settlement. They were married July 10, 1948.

Edith Miller, 57, Menasha, received a divorce from Kenneth W. Miller, 57, Winneconne. She was allowed to resume her former married name of Edith Velli-quette.

He was ordered to pay her $750 in lieu of alimony. There also was a property settlement. They were married Oct. 1, 1958.

The plaintiffs in both cases charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Bonduel Lions to Have Sale of Light Bulbs

BONDUEL — The Lions Club will sponsor a light bulb sale between 7 and 9 p.m. Dec. 6. Proceeds will be used to send blind children to the Lions Camp for the Blind at Rosholt, and for summer music scholarships for Bonduel High School band students.

Bulbs also are for sale at Chief garage.

Oddly enough, the details of the experiences with past deceptions seem to be swept aside as Deputy Premier Mikoyan is formally received at the White House as an accredited emissary of the Soviet Union.

Communist-Made Products Hard to Find in Fox Cities

BY HAROLD KURTZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There are operating in various parts of this country, groups which are organizing boycotts of goods made in communist-dominated countries. Their method of operation ranges from picketing to slipping cards into the merchandise on the merchants' shelves.

For those who could be considering such a campaign in the Fox Cities, just a word of warning: you're in for a lot of work.

I know. I have just completed an intensive, extensive and downright exhausting search of Fox Cities stores. In my quest, I have turned over hundreds of articles ranging from flower pots to mil-

Search Tour I have checked department stores, discount houses, butcher shops, liquor stores and green-houses.

The result of all this? There is Red-made merchandise available in the Fox Cities, but you have to search to find it. Here's what's been ferreted out.

I've managed to uncover wooden baskets made in Yugoslavia. There is Polish and Hungarian wine sold in the Fox Cities.

Major Import Polish hams can be purchased also. (Incidentally, Polish hams are the major import from Red countries with the U. S. bringing in $26.5 million worth last year.)

I have been told that there are certain food delicacies for sale in the area, but I haven't been able to find any of them. A usually unreliable source told me that she thought she'd seen some Russian caviar for sale somewhere, although maybe it wasn't here but in Chicago — she couldn't really recall. But I couldn't find any.

Poland and Yugoslavia account for most of the trade with the United States. This is being encouraged by the U. S. government in hopes of lessening the economic dependence of these two countries which they have had upon the Soviet Union.

There are no regulations forbidding U. S. trade in non-strategic items with Red-bloc countries. However, U. S. firms can't trade, import or export, with Red China, North Korea, North Viet Nam or East Germany.

Waupaca Truckdriver Hurt in Oshkosh Crash

OSHKOSH — A Waupaca man received cuts to his hands from flying glass when the truck he was driving went off State 110 near Winnebago County Trunk KK Wednesday.

Angelo C. Tomaras, 38, 531 Larson St., Waupaca, told Winnebago County Police the steering shaft broke when he was about 500 feet west of KK. The truck traveled about 950 feet across a field and across KK before it came to a stop.

The vehicle was owned by Mullen Electric Co., 2002 E. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton. Damage to the truck was estimated at $400.

The Other Son

Certainly Pakistani leaders cannot be blamed for their ire at the influx of United States and British aid to India after the long years of recrimination from Indian authorities and the attempts to maintain a policy of non-alignment in a world increasingly split. But the Pakistani attitude is narrow and provincial. It also indicates that Pakistan's allegiance to the West was based on something less than a belief and understanding of democracy and liberty.

Pakistan has grounds for anger and fear toward India because of the continued dispute over the Kashmir. India has firmly resisted efforts to mediate that explosive situation. There are also the violent religious prejudices between Hindus and Moslems which cannot be erased by national pacts. The memory of the massacres which accompanied the splitting of India and Pakistan cannot be easily forgotten although adherents of both faiths appeared to be equally at fault.

But Pakistan will now have difficulty trying to claim that its siding with the West was a matter of ideology. Pakistani leaders know how close to Soviet Russia they are. They chose to rely upon the strength of the Western powers rather than close ties with the Soviet Union in efforts to maintain their independence. Such a policy cannot be heavily criticized. But it cannot be defended as particularly noble any more either. The ease with which Pakistani leaders grasped at a non-aggression pact with Red China indicates rather clearly that national survival is more important to Pakistan than trying to uphold the ideas of justice and peace.

India made a serious mistake in its efforts to be neutral. But Nehru at least has admitted the error. It is possible that, given some cooperation and assistance, India might even agree with United Nations mediation in Kashmir. But Pakistan must now forget to be proud of its years of so-called allegiance to the West and stop complaining so bitterly about the serving of the fatted calf. It could learn a lesson straight out of the Old Testament if one dares to interject another religion into the current squabble.

Taxes Are Too High but —

The federal income tax on individuals and corporations is so high that a great many highly skilled persons are engaged in the business of tax avoidance. This is an occupation in itself. What would happen if taxes were suddenly lowered to a point where avoiding taxes would not be as profitable as it is today?

Sam Dawson, the Associated Press financial writer, had some interesting speculations on this subject in his column recently. He pointed out that the American way of life would be altered considerably if the Kennedy administration effort to cut taxes and reform the tax system should come about. He pointed out that too many business executives and high-income persons have become addicted to what he calls "half price thinking." Many persons dealing with the business of corporations which have high income and those handling the problems of individuals with high incomes have come to think of the costs of products and programs as only about half of what they may be marked because of the tax saving involved. Likewise they look upon promised rewards as worth only half of what they are quoted because of the extra tax liability.

It is well known of course that a great many charitable and welfare organizations are able to exist largely because gifts to them are tax deductible. What would be the attitude of the management of such corporations or of individuals toward their charities if the tax program were so revised as to make the tax deductibility feature less appealing?

How does this present high tax affect the distribution of important executives in industry? Many highly skilled executives may be passing up better paying jobs with greater responsibilities because the high tax rate would not permit them to profit much by the change. In fact many corporations appear to be in a treadmill which may seem to make the effort to produce more of doubtful value.

As Mr. Dawson points out, the tax laws are now so complicated that no less than 100,000 tax specialists work full time on the tax problems of others. Is it possible that a careful tax revision law would put a large part of this force at work at the actual production of goods and services and thus produce new wealth which would tend to sustain the government financially at lower rates?

The federal tax collections are so large and the process of collecting the tax so complicated that no one can really predict the outcome of a major tax reduction and tax law revision for certain. Everyone, however, appears willing to attempt such a prediction but we have no notion that the tax expert will be out of work in the near future.

Back to Jack London

The New Zealanders maintaining Scott Base in the New Zealand Antarctic Research program in the far, far south continue to use huskies and sleds despite the number of mechanized snow-cats and weasels which the Americans have brought to the continent. "Dogs can go places tractors can't," says the leader. "They rarely break down and when they do there are no spare parts needed, just rest."

The dogs are trained in much the same way as they have been for decades although the commands have changed from "haw" and "mush" to "wheeeet!" "auk!", "rrrrrruk!" and "ahhhh, boys, ahhhh." The animals are just as quarrelsome as ever too and the lead dog must be the real leader of the pack or be chewed apart. Whenever there is a halt, the major problem is to keep fights from breaking out in the traces and the subsequent need to untangle lines as well as patch up bleeding dogs. The New Zealand dog handlers think they are developing a special breed for work in the Antarctic but they have yet to breed out the dog's enthusiasm for a battle.

But the toughness of the dogs must be matched by that of the men who run alongside the wood and rawhide sleds. This year four men and eighteen dogs pulling two sleds have set out to cover 8,000 miles of Antarctica, much of it in mountains that go up 13,000 feet.

A Really Secret Ballot?

The computing machines which the various networks used on election night to determine in advance who was going to win produced quite amazingly. Although some candidates were trailing by as much as a hundred thousand votes in some cases, the computers doggedly insisted that they would be elected and so they turned out to be.

The accuracy of the prophecies may suggest something new eventually in the democratic process. In the near future it may become possible to do away with the nuisance of voting. Samplings of various polls can be fed to the computers along with percentages of eligible voters who have gone to the polls in recent years, the weather forecasts and the heat engendered in various campaigns. The computers can then come up with the winners without a ballot being cast.

Quoted from the Appleton Motor for Dec. 4, 1862.

In a recent discourse on the anniversary of the attack on Fort Sumter, Henry Ward Beecher said:

"I think you have seen the end of that most un-American Native Americanism. There is not one nation that has not contributed its quota to fight the battles of liberty. The blood of Yankees has met the blood of Irishmen. Right alongside of our Curtis is the noble Sibel. Right by the side of the wounded American lay the wounded German."

"Two tongues met when they spoke the common words: Country, Liberty, God and Freedom. And now there is no foreign blood among us. They are ours. They have earned their birthright here. Their nativity is as if our mothers bore them and nursed them."

"America now has received all her foreign population, now, with a more glorious adoption and they are our kindred. "God be thanked for this substantial benefit. War, with all its horrors, is not without its incidental advantages."

The game was a charity contest with proceeds going to the blind fund of the Appleton Lions Club. Although the invaders were known as the Electric City Brewers they were pretty much known as the Flying Dutchmen in Kaukauna uniforms.

No Guarantee Soviet Russia Will Honor Treaty Commitments

BY LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Is it worthwhile making treaties of any kind with Russia?

Six years ago, two scholars in the field of history and political science set out to answer this question. In the course of their research, they analyzed some 2,500 international agreements of the Russians between 1917 and 1957. The result of their study, "The Theory, Law and Policy of Soviet Treaties," was recently published under the auspices of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace for Stanford University.

Poor Record

Jan F. Triska, Associate Professor of Political Science at Stanford, and Robert M. Slusser, Lecturer in History at The Johns Hopkins University, believe, after a prolonged study, that we should continue to seek carefully drawn international agreements with Russia, despite her "distinctly poor" record of honoring treaties in the past.

gion Auxiliary were to be honored at a Christmas party. The first officers of the group, organized in May, 1924, and chartered the next year, included Mrs. William Zornow, president, Mrs. Frank Hermens Sr., vice president, Mrs. Peter Hermens, secretary, and Mrs. George Van Berkel, treasurer.

Korean War Veteran Edgar J. Meloan, Appleton, was awarded the bronze star by the War Department for meritorious service in Korea covering the period from July 2 to Nov. 2, 1950. The former soldier served with the 21st Infantry Regiment of the 24th Division. The presentation was made at the Rainbow Gardens reserve armory.

Two area barbershop quartets to take part in a program sponsored by the Neenah Presbyterian Men's Club were the Alley Rogues of Appleton, formerly known as the Sing-Copates, and The Valley Four of Neenah. Members of the Appleton group were Dick Paas, Gil Stammer, Gene Kohl and Bob Edwards. The Valley Four included Emil Hagman, Ken Chappell, Gib Neff and Fred Nixon.

Income Tax Increase Of at Least One Pct. In State Envisioned

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — In round numbers, the state personal income tax is now producing at the rate of about $250,000,000 per state budget biennium. That is the approximate yield after the increases in the rates voted by the legislature in the compromise with Gov. Nelson last year.

The figure is pertinent today in relation to the record high budget appropriation requests filed with Gov.-Elect Reynolds, ostensibly contemplating an increase in state expenditures for the next biennium of something like $162,000,000. That figure is deceptive, to the extent that it does not include the pressure for higher state school aids under a liberalized formula, which will have the anxious backing of the educators' lobby and will be enormously difficult to resist in the legislature.

It is fair, therefore, to note that the proposed increase in state spending during the next two years will come fairly close to the total yield of the present personal income tax, and that to grant such proposals would involve very nearly doubling the yield from the income tax through the most severe increases in rates that has ever been suggested here.

THE OUTLOOK

There is no immutable necessity for limiting state revenue explorations to the income tax, of course. Yet Gov.-Elect Reynolds has said that he will consider no other course, and therefore the income tax implications of spending proposals are valid.

As a practical matter, no governor ever accepts as his own budget recommendations the total of the requests filed with him by the scores of agencies. The state has never been so flush. Some gestures toward providence and economy are required even on the man who has electoral security. Moreover, there is a widespread belief that many of the agencies ask for more than they expect to get, in order to be cut back to the figure they really want and need. Given human nature, that is probably a justifiable belief, in public as in many private organizations as well.

Suppose then that Gov. Reynolds is able to hold down the rate of increase in his spending budget to $100,000,000 for his term, which would be an optimistic achievement, indeed. What would that equivalent be in higher personal income tax liability? (The personal income tax must be emphasized here since nobody for many years has made any serious gestures toward increasing the corporation income tax.)

Tax department men say that each one per cent of income tax applied in each of the taxable brackets of personal income will raise somewhere around $60,000,000 a year. Thus a $100,000,000 boost in spending for the biennium would be covered through a one per cent boost in each bracket, repeating in effect the increase that was voted by the legislature the last time it sat.

QUALIFICATIONS

But even that is an optimistic interpretation, since the governor-elect also explained, when he reluctantly talked about such things during his campaign, that he would not want to raise the rate of taxation on incomes below $3,000. If that insistence is upheld, it will mean correspondingly higher extractions in the brackets above $3,000.

Mr. Reynolds also declared, when he discussed the matter in a program paper, that he would get rid of some of the new selective sales taxes (except on autos, liquor, tobacco and beer) that have an income equivalent of about $30,000,000 a year.

It is perfectly evident to reasonable and practical men that such a cutback in state revenues under such doubtful circumstances won't be seriously considered. The instances in which tax laws have been repealed are so few that for all practical purposes there are no precedents. It is hard to entertain the notion that the legislature would consider getting rid of $30,000,000 in income when the state is already teetering on the edge of a $50,000,000 a year deficit, as a minimum.

These comparisons and evident revenue gaps, aside from their cheerless sound to the taxpayer down in the ranks, are useful for putting into perspective what was never quite clearly shown during the campaign: that Mr. Reynolds' income tax only commitment will be very difficult to achieve. Even a prudent man would now be tempted to guess that it won't be achieved.

In several previous columns, I have called for a change in our thinking to accompany the profound changes in our physical world of the last decade. We desperately require, I have suggested, a new approach to the basic questions of peace and national survival.

What I was trying to express has been so admirably and succinctly said by a distinguished scientist that I think his words (lost in the welter of news) deserve the widest recirculation and, the deepest study.

Speaking at the first national conference of the Congress of Scientists on Survival, Dr. Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, the great biochemist who won the Nobel Prize for medicine in 1937, told his learned audience:

"The existence of mankind is already dependent on correct functioning of countless hands and buttons, while both humans and machines are known to err—which makes our own bombs in a threat to our existence equal to the bombs of our adversaries. Never has politics gambled so irresponsibly before with the very existence of mankind. . . . Science tells us that if we have such a problem, we must approach it as such, collect the data, then try to fit them together and find the best solution, with a neutral mind, a cool

Man Gives Wife College Diploma

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — George Hartje came up with a welcome and thrifty anniversary gift for his wife — a college diploma. And he got it for only $3.60.

The story goes back to 1952 when the future Mrs. Hartje graduated, but not quite, from Hendrix College here. There was the matter of a library fine which the school insisted must be paid before a diploma was given.

"She said that after all her father had spent on her education already, she was ashamed to ask him for $3.60 more," Hartje recalled.

The diploma went into the college vault. Two months later the Hartjes were wed and through 10 years of marriage Hartje from time to time heard wistful comments from his wife about the missing sheepskin.

So when their anniversary came up the other day, the couple drove to the college where Hartje anted up the $3.60. The diploma was brought out, dusted off and conferred on Mrs. Hartje.

Symphony Plans 4th Young Artists Contest

Application Deadline Dec. 15 for Competition Open to Vocalists

For the fourth consecutive year, the Green Bay Symphony Orchestra will hold a competition for young Wisconsin or Upper Michigan artists.

This season's competition will be for vocalists between the ages of 16 and 24. Although the exact competition date has not been set, the deadline date for submitting applications for the contest is Dec. 15. According to the orchestra management, the competition will be held in Green Bay after Jan. 10, 1963.

The winner as in other years will receive a $100 U. S. savings bond and become the guest artist on the symphony's spring concert program set this season for March 10.

The symphony inaugurated its Young Artists Competition in 1959 with a piano contest. Miss Janice Macsek, West Allis, was the winner. She now is a student at Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

In 1960 the winner was Miss Eva Tamulenas of Racine, then a voice major at Lawrence College Conservatory of Music. Miss Tamulenas since has embarked on a European operatic career and presently is studying in Vienna.

to orchestra Director Ralph B. Holler, 607 Gray St., Green Bay.

Each contestant will be expected to sing two standard operatic arias of contrasting types. In addition, each contestant must be prepared to sing a shorter piece in the event of a tie. All music must be sung from memory, according to contest rules.

Rehearsals For Winner

The winner must agree to appear as a soloist with the symphony at the March 10 concert. Two rehearsals with the orchestra will be required and one will be held on the afternoon of the concert. The other rehearsal will be arranged at the contestant's convenience but it must be at one of the orchestra's regular scheduled rehearsal sessions.

Contestants are to provide their own expenses for the competition, making arrangements for their own accompanists and provide music for the two judges.

The Green Bay Symphony will provide for the winner's concert appearance in March.

NBC Color Aids Probe Of the Bard

6:30-7:30 (Channel 4-5) — Tonight's special, Shakespeare: Soul of an Age, is one of television's finest hours. It is the work of Lou Hazam, who produced the Van Gogh show; like that, thus one returns to the scenes to reconstruct the life of the great playwright. The program begins with a soaring aerial view of England, and we gradually glide in to Stratford-on-Avon, as Sir Michael Redgrave recites some of Shakespeare's words. Sir Ralph Richardson is the narrator, and other actors join Redgrave in the excerpts. (Color)

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11) — For those who prefer war stories to Shakespeare, The Gallant Men offers a suspenseful hour this week. The plot has our boys moving into a village which the Nazis evidently left in a "considerable hurry. But there is something suspicious. The suspicion heightens when a girl tries to get them to leave and an old man is killed. Then comes the realization that there are no chudien around.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 2) — The exigencies of the sponsor system left Route 66 holding the bag this week. The whole story of tonight's show was written for one purpose — to give the boys a good excuse for getting rid of their old car so they could get a new '63 model. But the sponsor didn't like the script, so it had to be rewritten. Result: a story which builds to a climax which never comes.

"Twas the Night Before Christmas" Movie Made by Pandora Jr. Tri-Y

Cathy Dickson and Maija Zupans helped each other with makeup Saturday as they prepared to perform in the stellar spectacular, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." The Pandora Jr. Tri-Y girls enacted the roles of the mama, in her kerchief, and papa, in his cap, and the children, all nestled snug in their beds.

"Twas the Night Before Christmas" was committed to film Saturday afternoon by members of Pandora Jr. Tri-Y. The girls planned their play and rehearsed before the Saturday performance at the home of the club's advisor, Mrs. William Sense Jr., 705½ S. Outagamie St.

The young women rented costumes for their performance. Finding a head for Santa's reindeer proved difficult, however, and branches from a bush were finally brought in as substitutes.

The filming was done by Mr. and Mrs. Sense, who also directed the movie.

The film will be shown to parents and the public at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 16 at the Y. Refreshments will be served.

Linda Besch and Nancy De Leest performed a doll scene in the second act of the play, which was recorded on film by the club's advisors, Mr. and Mrs. William Sense Jr.

Dear Louise: Would you please tell me the proper way to address an envelope which writing to a married woman, be it to her office, home or hospital? How about a widow or divorced woman? How are sympathy cards addressed? Is a name used for a return address?

Louise Davis Answers:

An envelope to a married woman is always addressed to Mrs. Joseph Henry Smith. It is the same for a widow. She continues to use her late husband's full name.

A divorced woman has the choice of the following names (let us assume her maiden name was Adams): Mrs. Mary Adams Brown, Mrs. Mary A. Brown, Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. M. Adams Brown or Mrs. Adams Brown. Depending on the name, she chooses, the envelope is addressed accordingly. If the person replying has not been informed of the "official" name, it would be safe to address the envelope Mrs. Mary Adams Brown.

A sympathy note or card is addressed to the person or persons whom you know in the family of the bereaved. The message of condolence is meant for all the family. Yes, a name is used on the envelope for a return address. This is for the convenience of the Post Office.

BE PUNCTUAL
Dear Louise: If we are invited to dinner at 7 p.m., what is the proper time to arrive?

Louise Davis Answers:
Seven p.m. . . . on the dot.

Club Meets in Shawano Hotel

SHAWANO — Seven tables of bridge were in play Wednesday night when the Shawano Bridge Club met at the Hotel Bilmay.

Proper Emphasis Hides Feminine Figure Faults

TORONTO (AP) — "Why don't my clothes ever look like those I see in the fashion magazines?" Many women, both those who spend a great deal of time designing and sewing their own clothes and those who spend hours shopping for them, have asked themselves this question.

And the answer is simple. Perhaps they have never taken the time to analyse their figure (its good points and its defects), their skin color and their personality.

A woman must consider all these factors in order to choose styles that are becoming to her, says Mrs. Loraine Scott, an instructor in the fashion department at the Ryerson Institute of Technology.

"The ideal figure is balanced in all directions and you should choose your clothes with the aim of bringing your figure back to the ideal." For example, if you are bottom heavy, you should choose clothes that will make you look broader in the shoulders to detract from the heaviness.

The structural lines of any garment are most effective for bringing the figure back into balance. "With lines, you can lead the eye up and down or across the figure to any point you may wish to emphasize."

Fabric Important

Long straight vertical lines and panels and the softer more feminine S-lines extending from neckline to hem lengthen the figure. The woman with the short figure should look for these lines in styling, while a tall woman should look for horizontal and oblique lines which make the figure shorter.

Structural lines should be designed within the silhouette that best suits your figure. The tubular silhouette, such as that given by the straight sheath dress, looks best on the average balanced figure, while the bell silhouette, which widens at the bottom, looks best on the figure that is heavy through the hips.

A woman must be careful not to choose a fabric that will counteract the effects of the line and silhouette she has chosen.

A plump or overweight person should stick to smooth-surfaced fabrics. Piles, shaggy materials and heavy tweeds, plaids and prints all add weight to the figure. Sheen surfaces such as satins, which catch the light and reflect it, also add weight to the figure and point up those features which are already prominent.

"Any fabric designs, plaids, stripes or prints, should be in proportion to your figure size." For example, a tall, rangy figure looks smart in a large plaid while a petite figure, in the same plaid, would look out of balance.

Color Adds Weight

Colors, just as fabric textures, can make the figure look larger or smaller. The figure looks larger in light, bright colors and smaller in dark, dull colors and this principle can be used to cover up figure faults, says Mrs. Scott. You can minimize the fact that you are top-heavy by wearing dark tops and blouses and minimize the size of your hips by wearing dark skirts with light tops.

Knowing whether your skin has an overabundance of red or yellow is a help when choosing colors. A person with a balanced skin can wear almost any color while the person with predominantly yellow skin will not look good in red shades, and the person with predominantly red skin will have difficulty in wearing the yellow and yellow-green shades.

Neutral shades—black, white, brown and their related shades of grey and beige—often tend to drain the color from a person's face and therefore good makeup and accessories are important if these colors are to look smart.

"Personality plays an important part in clothing." If a woman wants to emphasize her gentle, feminine characteristics, she will choose clothes of soft fabrics and colors with curved structural lines. If a woman wishes to stress her aggressive competitive side, she will choose heavier tailored garments with straight structural lines.

Mind Can Be Full Of Plots

What does an expert think about while he is playing a hand? It may be interesting to do a bit of mind-reading with a hand that presents a few problems.

West opens the three of hearts. East puts up the king, and South wins with the ace. "I must take the spade finesse in West's direction," says the dealer.

tion anyway, so there's no advantage in holding up the ace of hearts. If West continues hearts, he will give me a second trick in the suit."

South leads a club to dummy's queen and takes a finesse with the queen of spades. "Come on, your poor fish, lead another heart and give me my ninth trick."

No luck. West makes a safe exit with a club to dummy's king. South takes the ace and jack of spades, discarding a heart from dummy. West discards the deuce of hearts on the third spade.

"West started with exactly five hearts, since he led the three and also had the deuce. He had only two spades. That leaves him six cards in clubs and diamonds to start with."

Tries Clubs

South leads his last club to dummy's ace. West discards the eight of hearts. "Too bad that suit didn't break to give me my ninth trick. Hello, West started with only two clubs. Therefore he must have held four diamonds; and East could have only two diamonds. No chance of East's getting the lead if I play the diamonds."

So declarer takes the top diamonds and gives West the third round of diamonds. West can cash his other diamond, but then

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Smalley, Seattle, Wash., celebrated their 72nd wedding anniversary with the observation that "it doesn't pay to fight." The couple posed with their anniversary cake Tuesday. Smalley, who is 93 years old, says that the elimination of marital combat also helps general health. "I haven't been to a doctor since 1918," he says. Mrs. Smalley, 90, has been to a doctor only once in the past 36 years. (AP Wire-photo)

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Playing Santa

Christmas shopping would be less of an endurance contest, if we girls heeded the warning to do it early. Now, before the crush sets in!

Shopping expeditions might even become the delight they are meant to be, if only shoppers were better organized. A trusty plan of organization follows:

Before ever setting out, complete your gift list. Be sure to include names of all recipients, gift ideas for each, and sizes where required. Also, for packages going directly from stores to recipients, write gift cards and enclose them in fully addressed envelopes. Then make an itinerary of stores and store floors where your needs are most likely to be filled.

Such planning saves you time, indecision and the tiresome re-tracing of steps. Your nerves and energy naturally benefit thereby. Stamina is bolstered further by dressing comfortably. That means a supporting girdle, well-filled shoes with a low or medium heel, and clothing sufficiently light in weight to keep you from steaming once inside a store.

Cumbersome clothing of any kind, from weighted handbags to heavy boots, soon become a drag. So do travel light, or else make use of checking facilities.

Should fatigue begin to creep up, take time out to sip a hot beverage and to freshen your make-up. Above all, remember that a cheerful shopper is most apt to receive cheerful service. She gets the pick of gifts and has fun doing it.

For a lovelier figure, walk with the grace that nature intended! To check or improve on your ability, send for "CLUES TO GOOD CARRIAGE," my leaflet giving complete instructions on shoes, stockings and walking techniques that enhance both carriage and legline. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a LARGE, SELF-ADDRESSED, STAMPED ENVELOPE, and five cents in coin.

Stay at Home Gifts

Especially in the season of family gathering and entertaining, look newest this season with gifts that stay at home are best. They bring comfort and beauty and perhaps extra luxury to be enjoyed by everyone, and for a long time.

Home gifts provide the same blessings every year, but what we choose to provide them changes. Tables preferred for Christmas 1962, for example, may be entirely different from last year in Spanish style. Almost no one thought of wanting cube-shaped, campaign type or sea chests last year, but they are available and very appealing now. Other small-size special storage pieces grow in popularity, the latest favorite the place mat chest, one of which is sketched at right.

Settees, benches and stools are gift ideas that they never were just a few years ago. So are unusually decorative clocks, which look newest this season with bright colored glass faces. Pillows are no longer satisfied with bright color alone, but take to embroidery and fluffy yarn trims. Wall decorations reach a peak of appeal, in enormously varied new styles, shapes and materials. The horizontal panel sketched inlays wood and decorates with paint.

Accent and area rugs are less new than newly presented in more fascinating designs and colors at a wider range of prices. And demand for desks greatly increases their number and kinds, from the drop-leaf which is sketched here in a new type of piece of furniture which combines the desk with a chest, a magazine rack and shelves in a free-standing unit, to the sturdy knee-hole perennial, here with a book-case front.

Your Problems

Animal Origins Confirmed by Beastly Acts of Human Beings

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was fascinated by the letter from the woman whose husband believed that every human was an animal in a previous life. He kept pointing out to their daughter the physical characteristics of her boy friends and compared them with baboons, pigs and so on.

Landers

I will go him one better — humans often behave like the animals they resemble. My father, for example, not only looked like a mule, he acted like one. He was stubborn and inflexible. My dear little mother had squirrel-like features. She was fast-moving, sensitive and a great saver for the future.

My sister Rita resembled a cat. She had a purring voice, great grey eyes and absolutely no loyalty. Rita married four times — each time for more money.

I married a man who had a thin face, pointed ears and beady eyes. He turned out to be a rat in more ways than one.

I've seen many pictures of you, Ann, and I think you look like a lamb. — Food For Thought

Dear Food: So I look like a lamb, do I? Considering the other possibilities that's not bad — a-a-a-a-aad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl, 19, who has lived at home all my life but I can truthfully say I don't know my mother. We are polite to each other but we've never had a real conversation about anything.

It seems odd to me that I would crave mother-love at this age. Is it normal? I never recall that my mother ever held me on her lap or kissed me. Through the years her remarks have been either critical or trivial. I am a top student and have always done well in school. People speak highly of me — everyone, except my mother, that is. I can't remember her ever giving me a compliment.

My mother is a fine woman and greatly respected in the community. I've never told a soul that she is like a stranger to me. Somehow I feel better for having told you. Is there any way I can improve our relationship? Grace.

Dear Grace: If you are 19 and have never had a real conversation with your mother I doubt that you will ever have one.

Cold people are usually unhappy and desperately lonely. They would be different if they could, but they don't know how. You will probably always crave mother-love, but the love for a husband and children will fill the void. My only advice is to start early to communicate with your children. Break the ice-chain in your own generation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to Bonnie was excellent. When a wife says her husband has always been faithful and well-behaved, is home every night, and then suddenly she finds a woman's sweater and a pair of high-heeled shoes in the back seat of the car, she should confront him with it.

I was in the same spot a few years back and luckily, an unexpected turn of events saved me. My husband went to New Orleans to attend a convention. They thought it would be a cute idea to slip a pair of black lace panties into his suitcase. Of course I found the panties when I unpacked. They had been placed with his pajamas.

When I handed "the evidence" to him he swore he knew nothing about it. I didn't believe him and said so. Then the phone rang. One of his buddies who was in on the prank had told his wife about it. She persuaded him the gag might lead to serious trouble so he called me.

If I had said nothing and that phone call had not come, I would have believed the worst. — Another Bonnie.

The Circle voted a contribution to the American Field Service fund. Progress on plans for the March 13 appearance of the Kansas City Philharmonic, sponsored by the circle, was reported by Mrs. John Menn, co-chairman of the event.

The Circle's Christmas party and next meeting have been scheduled for Dec. 11. Serving on the committee will be Mrs. C. B. Sitterson, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Stephen Freschl, Mrs. William II. Haic, Mrs. Talbot Peterson, and Mrs. Forrest Sprowl. The meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William Siekman.

New Boom In Happy Pill Sales

BY ARTHUR J. SNIDER
Chicago Daily News Service

NEW YORK—The boom in happy pills is unabated. Only anti-biotics and hormones among the drugs exceed their sale.

The American Chemical Society estimates $32,000,000 worth of tranquilizers are sold annually in retail and another $25,000,000 to the nation's mental hospitals. About one out of 12 Americans uses tranquilizers regularly.

It was eight years ago that the first tranquilizer appeared, and now there are some 30 varieties.

There are pills to sedate the highly disturbed and destructive who previously had to be restrained by other means, including mechanical.

Remove Hallucinations
Other pills help remove the hallucinations and delusions of the paranoid.

Still others alter the stupor, muteness and frozen postures of the catatonic schizophrenics. Others tend to bring negative, apathetic and withdrawn patients out of their shells.

Newest in the field are the energizers, the mood-lifting agents to take people out of depressions.

Even a greater number are used by the so-called normal population who do not act strangely but have great anxiety that is expressed in bodily symptoms, such as weakness, tremor or pain.

Relief, Not Cure
But the drugs relieve only symptoms and are not considered curative. This is the goal sought by the Second International Conference on the Biological Treatment of Mental Illnesses here.

It is the view of most participants that mental illness is largely a problem of deranged body chemistry as opposed to the view of those who contend the abnormal behavior patterns stem from a breakdown in the patient's relations to society and can be treated only by "talk" therapy.

The quest is for a better understanding of brain metabolism and for specific chemicals that may be involved. Once discovered, neutralizing agents might be tailored to the patient's needs.

Since the brain cannot be entered for chemical studies, the search must be made for chemicals in the blood and urine. Chemical difference between the mentally ill and others have been found, but it remains to be seen whether these are related to the mental illness itself.

Results today have been promising enough to lead to predictions that the biological cures for some forms of mental illness will be found before the cure for cancer.

A Home Villain
Hard water is a villain that's hard to recognize. It puts scale in the water heater, plumbing and pipes. It turns colored clothes dull and white clothes gray. It deposits lime scale and soap curd on the inner parts of the washing machine and dishwasher. What can be done about it? The use of packaged softeners and synthetic detergents or a mechanical water softener will help. The saving on soap and equipment will more than pay for the water softener over a period of years.

SEAMS TO ME

Round Cuff Has Appeal

I love the look of a cuff on a long, fitted sleeve. The cuff can be formed by turning back the faced edge of a sleeve, or a side of the cuff joined to the separate cuff may be attached to right side of the sleeve. This applies to circular cuffs and flat be flat with split-pointed ends, cuffs with split pointed ends (fig- and made like a collar, or, it can be circular.

Here are some hints on making the circular cuff:

1. Stay-stitch around edge of the 1 1/4 inches wide and one inch long outer cuff piece. If interfacing is used, place it on the wrong side the bottom edge of the cuff. Stitch of the outer cuff and stay-stitch the ends together, taking a 1/2 inch them together.

2. Stitch the two ends of the straight grain. Slide facing over outer cuff together so the cuff the cuff, bottom edges even, and forms a circle. Take the under right side of bias facing toward cuff and trim off 1/8 inch from the top edge. Stitch the ends together as you did on the outer cuff. Press seams open.

3. Slide the under cuff inside the outer cuff with right sides together and baste together at the upper edges (figure 1).

4. Stitch together along basted edges (figure 2). Trim seam and turn right side out. If fabric is heavy, layer the seams when trimming for less bulk.

5. Now, baste the lower edge of the cuff together (figure 3).

6. To attach the separate cuff, baste the cuff to the lower edge of the sleeve. Be sure you match the notches and have the under side of the cuff joined to the separate cuff may be attached to right side of the sleeve. This applies to circular cuffs and flat be flat with split-pointed ends, cuffs with split pointed ends (figures 4, 5, and 6).

7. Your pattern usually has a piece for facing, either fitted or bias. If it doesn't, cut a bias strip.

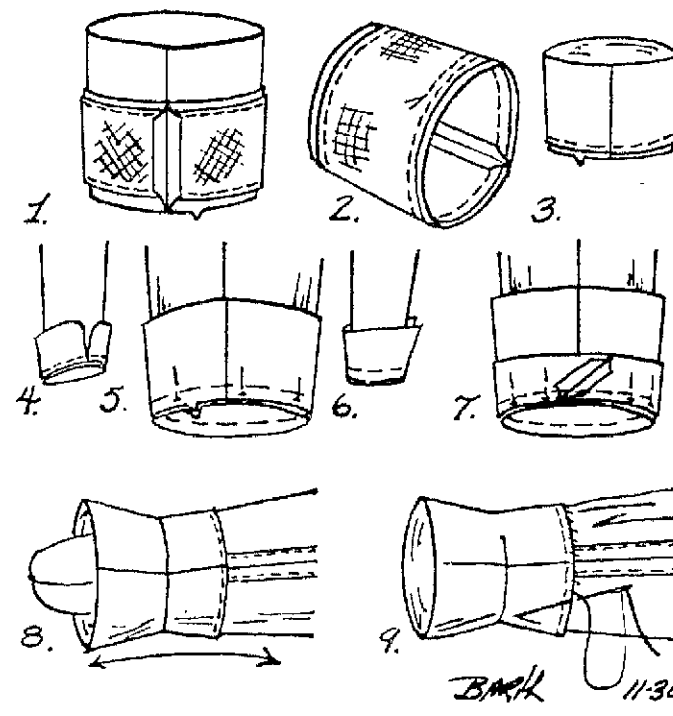

8. Trim seams. Turn sleeve wrong side out and turn the cuff down. Slip sleeve over a sleeve board and press seam allowances and bias facing toward the sleeve. As you press, stretch crosswise (figure 8).

9. Turn under edge of facing and pin in place. Then, hem it to the sleeve (figure 9).

Battle of Hemlines Rages Over Length of Jackets

The international battle of the hemlines opened in London with the start of the London Fashion Week—a combined display of British spring fashions for 1963.

This time skirts are not affected, but the hemline of just about every tailored jacket to be seen next season will have dropped at least two inches.

Present at the show, organized by London's fashion house group, were more than 300 buyers from some 30 countries, including Canada. Other contingents were from the United States, Australia and New Zealand, from countries in Europe, and from Africa and the Far East.

Slim, Tailored Line

The line which London advocates is slim and tailored. It will be kind to most figures. There is no single stereotype, yet a distinctive style emerges. In suits, waists, still suggested rather than stated, have moved slightly upwards, balancing the longer jacket. In dresses, the line is unbroken from neck to knee. Sheaths, shifts and tunics abound; trills, full skirts and shirtdresses have disappeared. The only trim permitted is, occasionally, the epaulette.

Two-Piece Outfits

The year 1963 will be the year of the two-piece outfit, worn for every hour of the day from breakfast till dinner in the form of tunics and skirts, dresses and jackets (with loose blazer styles predominating), and especially, gresses and coats. But in contrast to the almost masculine precision of the cut, the fabrics are the softest possible—silk, lawn, organza, tricot, cotton with a silky finish. A monotone dress in pure silk is teamed with a multi-colored chiffon coat caught at the throat with a bow-tie. A silk coat, belted like a trench-coat and not quite full-length, is worn over a matching dress.

Colors, too, are gentle. There is almost no black, and the torrid jungle prints of a few seasons ago have gone for good. In their place there is white—in every imaginable fabric from tweed to chifon—and the clear pastels of a softer sun—pink, orange, green, turquoise, lime and lemon, standing alone, combined in magnificent lotus prints, or blended together with the blurred outlines of impressionist printing.

Refresh Skin

For exceptionally dry skin, try this: spread a film of light oil over your throat and face. Then follow up by applying dense soap lather with circular motions, using lukewarm water. Finish up with a warm rinse.

Accept All Students Qualified Says Texan

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Dr. Harry Ransom, chancellor of the University of Texas, has called on Southern colleges and universities to accept all qualified students.

In an address to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Wednesday Ransom said: "We must insist that opportunity be provided according to ability, without regard to any other qualification or condition."

"We must bring into being a new confederacy of intellectual and social confidence. We have sometimes fallen back upon carefully nurtured historical, social and political pride and prejudice in order to avoid the discomforts of new learnings."

Mother Should Help Child Be Happy That He's Alive

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Eve Jones: My 5½-month-old girl is quick to cry and show her dislikes when things don't suit her. And she cries so violently and relentlessly that I'm concerned now and for the future about how to help her control such a strong will.

If her walker gets against her, for example, she gets furious. Should I let her storm until she stops (about 10 minutes) or should I remove the frustrations? I'm frustrated from fighting my baby's willfulness.

MRS. H. C. N. Stop fighting. Your job as a mother is to help your child feel happy about being alive. Help her — remember she's only 5 months old.

This isn't willfulness. This is perfectly natural and healthy outrage over being bothered and confused. Don't ruin her capacity to let the world know when she's angry. She'll grow up determined to make things better only if she doesn't lose sight of her own pains.

Dear Eve Jones: We're having difficulties toilet training our 2½-year-old girl. She's jealous of her 11-month-old sister and copies her. She makes patty cake and says, "Da-da," to get the same attention. Twice I've even found her drinking the baby's bottle. We're expecting a new baby in another two months, and I can't stand the idea of having three children in diapers.

MRS. C. M. Every time your 2-year-old starts to act like the baby, take her in your arms and give her a big hug. Then sit down and snuggle her for a few minutes while you tell her, "You don't have to act like the baby to get us to pay attention to you. Just tell us you want to snuggle. We love you. We don't only love little babies. We love our big girl, too."

Dear Eve Jones: Why do we have a curfew law for teen-agers?

Parents let them break this law all the time.

MRS. P. E. I don't have the answer to your question. But I doubt if such arbitrary authority is often helpful. Curfews are unnecessary for responsible parents who don't let their children stay out late. And they're disregarded by irresponsible parents.

I'd guess that curfews are helpful only in permitting the police to have an excuse to examine teen-agers who might be in the process of committing a crime.

For a copy of a new pamphlet by Dr. Jones, "How To Solve Toilet Problems," write to her in care of the Post-Crescent, Appleton, Wis., enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling.

When Irmin Schreiner, 635 Manitowoc St., Menasha, celebrates his 50th birthday anniversary Dec. 13, he'll have lots of family company. ## School Unit to Air Plans for Yule Bake Sale

KAUKAUNA — Plans for a Christmas bake sale will be discussed at a brief business meeting prior to the Christmas party of the Holy Cross Home-School Association at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school activity room.

Special entertainment in keeping with the season is planned. A buffet-style lunch will be served by mothers and fathers of fifth and sixth grade youngsters. Mrs. Curtis Wolf and Mrs. Marvin Schuler are co-chairmen of the social.

The Engagement of Princess Alexandria of Kent, first cousin of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and the Hon. Angus Ogilvy was announced today in a Court circular from Kensington Palace in London. The couple is shown in 1955 at the hunt races in Perth, Scotland. The princess will be 26 Christmas Day. Her 34-year-old fiancé is the second son of the Earl and Countess of Airlie. (AP Wirephoto)

Irreparable Blow

British Princess Will Wed Scot Commoner

BY WILLIAM H. STONEMAN

Chicago Daily News Foreign Service LONDON — European Royalty has suffered an irreparable blow with the announcement that 26-year-old princess Alexandra of Great Britain, its most eligible female member, is going to marry a commoner.

Alexandra's intended is 34-year-old Angus Ogilvy, second son of the Earl and Countess of Airlie, and just about as blue blooded a person, royal or otherwise, as anybody in Britain. The Airlie's Scottish Barony goes back to 1491 and the British Earldom to 1639.

His father has been attached to the Royal household for many years. Young Angus, who has been squireing the Princess around intermittently for eight years, went to Eton and Oxford and did his national service in the Scots Guards. He is now extremely wealthy in his own right, with 29 company directorships.

Acquaintances testify that he is a manly fellow with a good sense of humor and a fine match for the personable and lovable princess. Unlike her badly spoiled and temperamental first cousin Princess Margaret, Alexandra has been universally popular since childhood.

Born Queen But with all his attractions young Ogilvy is not a member of Royalty and Alexandra will be "letting down the side" by marrying him. The future of Royalty as an institution might have been bolstered greatly had she become the stately, personable queen that she seemed born to become.

Alexandra's mother, who was Princess Marina of Greece, married for love. But the man she married was the Duke of Kent, fourth son of King George V of England, and one of the most eligible bachelors in Europe. Alexandra's brother, the present Duke of Kent, married a commoner.

If neutral matchmakers had had their way Alexandra would have married Crown Prince Harald of Norway. But neither she nor Harald proved co-operative.

Altar Society Members Urged To Hold Retreat

KAUKAUNA — Members of the St. Mary Christian Mothers Altar Society were told of the importance and rewards received through making a retreat and encouraged to plan a weekend retreat in 1963 by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Peter Salm, pastor, at a meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. Russell Pleshek, Mrs. Edwin Vanevenhoven and Mrs. Orville Cleveland were named chairman for three reading circles organized within the group. Purpose of the circles is to promote and make available good reading material to members.

Plans were made to hold a covered dish party Jan. 8. Members will recite Fatima prayers for peace at 6 a.m. Saturday and receive Holy Communion at the 7 a.m. Sunday mass.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Dashing, mustached Lt. Gen. Sam Maneckshaw will be appointed corps commander of the Indian armed forces in northeast India, authoritative sources said Thursday.

He replaces Lt. Gen. Brij Mohan Kaul, who commanded the Indian army against the Chinese Communist invasion in the North-east.

Horseless Carriage Club Officers to be Elected Saturday

KAUKAUNA—Election of officers will be held at a regional gathering of the Horseless Carriage Club at 6 p.m. Saturday at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Approximately 70 persons are expected to attend the affair which will include a dinner and social program. The group will discuss summer activities and coming shows for vintage cars.

Fox Cities Need Building Program

Locks both will need new facilities. Kaukauna's probably will be adequate for most of the 25-year period. Little Chute may need a new one late in the period, and Kimberly is advised to expand the present building.

Library Changes

Branch libraries will be needed in Appleton, the commission's report says. The downtown library will be adequate. Neenah and Menasha are advised to develop their central libraries to serve larger populations. An expansion of the present building is recommended for Kaukauna. The villages of Kimberly, Little Chute and Combined Locks are advised to combine their facilities for the most effective and efficient operation.

Three district parks of from 100 to 200 acres each, and with a service radius of three to five miles, are recommended. Ten more community parks are suggested, each having 25 to 50 acres and a service radius of 1½ miles.

No regional parks are recommended, because, the report says, High Cliff State Forest Park is well located in the region, and will service all needs very well, especially if neighborhood, community and district parks are developed.

No recommendation is made on how many neighborhood parks should be provided during the 25-year period. The report says that should be left to the local planning commissions discretion, and should be taken care of when new subdivision plans are approved.

School Sites

Sites for the proposed schools are suggested in the report, but where they actually will be built depends on population movement trends. Most recommended sites are outside present corporate boundaries in anticipation of urban growth. Several will have to be relocated because the maps were drawn before the state school consolidation program was completed. Several schools would be on district boundary lines.

The planners do not anticipate all the schools will be built by 1985, but they hope that most of them will be and that site acquisition will be in process for the rest.

Proposed elementary schools are scattered quite evenly throughout the region. Four of the new junior high schools are south and west of Neenah and Menasha. There is one to the west and one to the north of Appleton. There is one north of Little Chute and one south of Combined Locks - Kimberly. There are two near Kaukauna, one north and one south.

One new senior high school is proposed for the Neenah district. The commission report advises Appleton to start site negotiations for its third senior high by 1985.

In some instances, schools at all levels will need to be expanded and remodeled, the report says.

Appleton City Hall

Appleton will need to replace its city hall during the 25-year planning period, according to the report. A municipal office building is recommended on the northwest corner of Division and Washington streets, where the city now has a parking lot. A civic auditorium is proposed for the northeast corner of the same two streets. Across from the municipal building is the parking ramp now under construction. The civic center map shows Washington extended, curving northwest, just east of the water tower, and joining Franklin Street.

In Menasha, the municipal center would consist of a new fire station at First and Racine streets, and a city hall and police station, in separate buildings, on First Street.

A new city hall and fire station are proposed for Neenah, in adjacent buildings, on Columbus avenue, about a block from the city's new police station. The present city hall lot is shown as a tree-lined parking lot, adjacent to an existing parking lot.

Kaukauna is advised to move its police and fire departments out of city hall to gain more municipal office space as the need arises.

It is recommended Combined Locks build a municipal building near Wallace and Park streets. Kimberly is advised to convert its village hall into library and fire department, and to provide more municipal offices by expanding the city garage. Little Chute's hall will serve well if the police department is moved out.

Town Halls

Town halls in Buchanan and Grand Chute will not need to be changed. There is no evidence of need for halls in the Towns of Neenah and Menasha, the report says. The Town of Neenah board meets in the Lakeview School, and the Menasha board in the Spring Road School.

Appleton's police station will need to be expanded, the commission believes, near the end of the planning period. A precinct station on the north side is advised as the city grows in that direction.

Expanded stations are recommended in Kimberly, Combined Locks and Little Chute.

The report recommends that Appleton locate its new central fire station somewhere in a triangular area formed by the Atlantic - Drew streets intersection, the College Avenue-South Court intersection and the South-Law streets intersection.

Fire stations in the Towns of Grand Chute and Buchanan will serve through the period, although, the report says, Grand Chute's is not well located.

Fire equipment for the east part of the Town of Menasha could be housed in the new Menasha fire station, or the town could contract with the city to provide service.

The west part of the Town of Menasha and the Town of Neenah could be serviced by fire departments in the cities, the report suggests, also on a contract basis if that is feasible.

Park-School Tie

Ideally, the 10 community parks recommended should be in combination with new high schools, the report says.

One district park would be east of Kaukauna and south of the Fox River. Allied to this park is a parkway along the river, going east and north from the city to link with the proposed expressway crossing, which would join with the newly-opened U.S. 41 freeway.

Another district park would be in the western part of the Town of Menasha about at Stroebe's Island. (Fox Cities officials and civic leaders have asked that the planning commission create a committee to study the purchase of the island for park use.)

The third district park would be in the Waverly Beach area on Lake Winnebago, in the Town of Harrison. The park would provide more public access to the lake, the report says.

Citizen Groups Important in Basin Planning

New President of Wolf River Unit Cites Value of Discussion

Citizen organizations and conservation groups can play an important role by working with governmental agencies and serving as a forum for discussion in the field of river basin planning, the Rev. W. E. Lange, Seymour, newly elected president of the Wolf River Improvement Association, said at its annual meeting in New London Thursday.

"The planning commission created by the governor at the request of the counties is very much needed," the Rev. Mr. Lange said, "since the research, planning and coordination for the entire basin can best be done under the authority and direction of the county governments in the seven counties in which the Wolf River and its tributaries are located."

"I believe such voluntary organizations and citizen groups will certainly work cooperatively, and in support of the agencies of government in the important field of river basin planning," the new president said.

Protect Game Habitat

Representing the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service at the meeting was Robert Uppgren, St. Paul, Minn., who said his department must be consulted when any stream changes are proposed which would impound waters, deepen the channel or where the water course is changed, to give it an opportunity to advise on whether such action would be in the interest of protecting the fish and game habitat.

Walter Johnson, director of state planning, commended the organizations in the area for the progress they had helped achieve in establishing the Regional Plan-

100 Attend Welfare Talks

New Program for Rehabilitation on Agenda for Workers

Administrative and caseworkers from welfare agencies in the Green Bay and Wisconsin Rapids districts met at the Outagamie courthouse Thursday to discuss the new federal vocational rehabilitation program.

Over 100 workers explored methods of how the Department of Health Education and Welfare program can rehabilitate and make more self-supporting persons who are presently welfare cases.

Alfred Eggert, Outagamie County welfare director, said Outagamie County already finances its own vocational rehabilitation program.

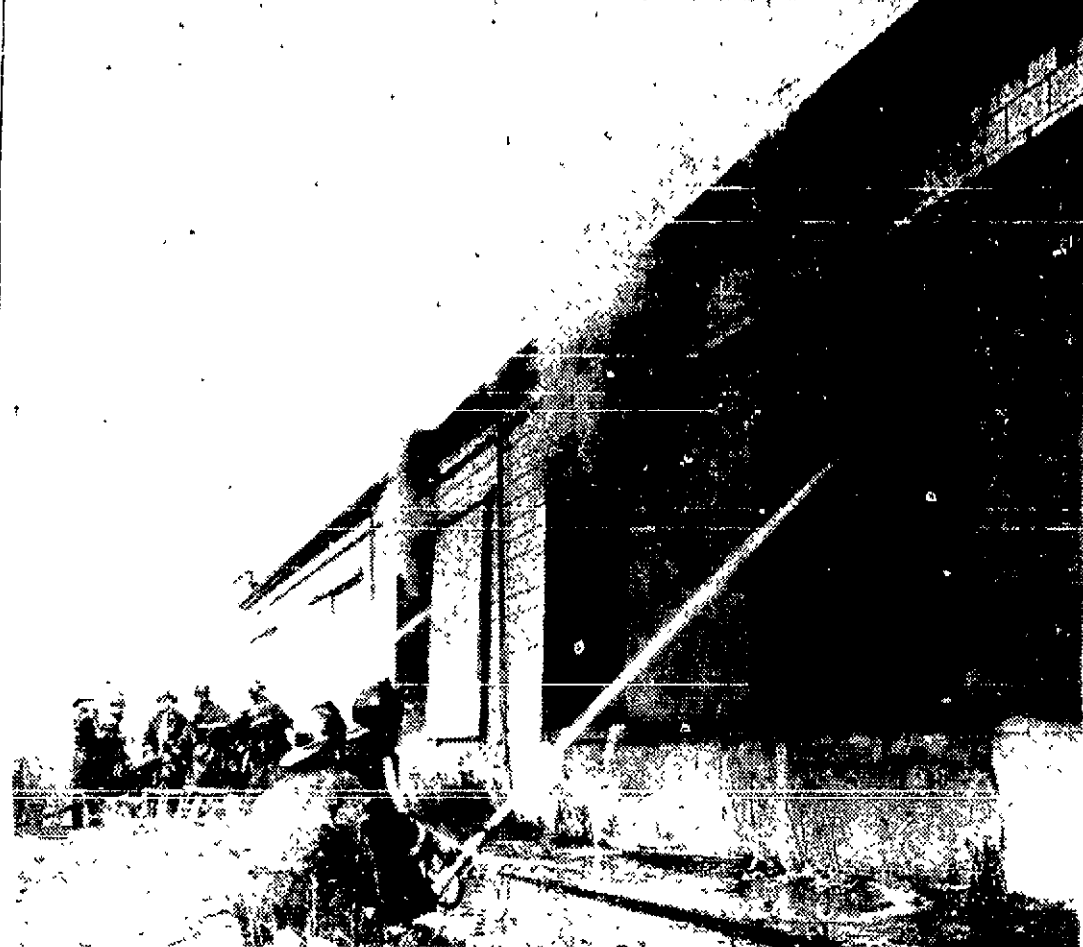

"But now," he added, "we will have a real program coming from the federal level."

Otto Richter, Madison, an administrative employee of the State Department of Public Welfare, discussed the necessary qualifications for placing a public assistance recipient in the rehabilitation program.

He talked about eligibility standards for persons on relief, saying, "If anyone meets these standards, there is no question as to the feasibility of the program."

State Road Maps Not Ready Until January

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's 1963 highway map won't be ready for distribution until January, said the State Highway Commission today. The agency said it has been delayed with early requests for copies.

All of Appleton's Firemen were at the scene of a spectacular $100,000 warehouse fire on Appleton's west side Thursday. Firemen remained at the scene all Thursday night keeping the fire under control. The fire was in a paper-filled warehouse owned by Harold Shlimovitz and leased by Riverside Paper Corp. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Firemen Remain at Scene of Warehouse Blaze All Night

Two Men Injured in $100,000 Blaze on Appleton West Side

Appleton firemen and equipment were kept at the scene throughout Thursday night of a warehouse fire on the city's west side. Damage estimates are as high as $100,000.

The fire started about 11:30 a.m. when a tow motor truck snapped an electric cord, causing a short circuit and sparks which ignited loose paper stored in the warehouse used by Riverside Paper Corp. Firemen fought the fire for four hours. One man was injured and another is in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital, where he is being treated for smoke inhalation.

Fire Chief Roland Kuehn said Lloyd Eisner, 44, an off-duty fireman called to help control the fire, was overcome by smoke as he trained a water spray on a burning paper bale about 1 p.m. Also injured and taken to the hospital but released after treatment was Paul Reque, 23, who injured his foot when a paper bale toppled on him. Both men were taken to the hospital by the department's rescue car.

Chief Kuehn said today that almost all the 60 firemen called to the scene, including 31 off-duty firemen, felt effects of smoke and a chemical contained in the pulp stored in the building.

Hoses and men were kept at the scene overnight to help warehouse and paper firm employees water down the bales being taken from the building and deposited at the city dump.

Bale Fell
One bale fell from a truck on W. Wisconsin Avenue and burst into flames. The Town of Grand Fire Department was called to put out the blaze about 9 p.m. One truck hauling bales from the warehouse started toward the city dump, but the bales caught fire before the truck was a block away. The driver returned to the warehouse for more watering down.

Estimate Damages
Fred Watson, secretary-treasurer of the Riverside Paper Corp., which rents space in the one-floor concrete block building, estimated between $50,000 and $60,000 damages to paper stored there. A more detailed estimate would be made later today, Watson said. Harold Shlimovitz, 1818 W. Reeve St., owner of the building, declined to estimate repair costs.

Airport Evidence Can be Introduced At CAB Hearing

Premature to Accept Plans Now, Examiner Tells County Counsel

BY DICK LYNEIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Outagamie County has received assurance from a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner that it will have the opportunity to introduce evidence about new airport plans during future board hearings on regional airline service.

However, Edward Stodola, the CAB examiner, ruled that it would be premature to accept Outagamie County's plans at this time. The time and place of the hearings which will begin Jan. 9, 1963, will be announced later.

In the CAB hearing on regional stops, Appleton has been paired with Oshkosh, and Green Bay has been paired with Clintonville for purposes of the inquiry.

Stodola, in the Nov. 19 ruling, refused to accept material submitted by County Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath Nov. 7 and 16 on the new airport site. His ruling noted that the city of Clintonville asked for denial of the Outagamie County material on Nov. 13.

Plans Included
The material which Outagamie County sought to get into the proceeding included plans to build a new airport, its location, and the fact that the county board has approved its financing.

Stodola said in his notice that the CAB order included consideration "of the extent to which the construction of a new airport in any particular area may represent a sound long-term solution to the airline service problem on that portion of the North Central Airlines system" and that Outagamie County "will have every opportunity to submit evidence to show that a new airport for Outagamie County would be in the public interest."

Stodola then noted that it would be improper to accept the facts submitted by Ponath at this stage of the proceeding.

He said, "Such alleged facts should be properly presented as evidence to testimony in the proper manner during the formal hearing. It likewise is not proper for the examiner to request the other civic parties to this proceeding to furnish the evidence requested of them . . . with respect to both the existing airport serving Appleton as well as the projected new airport site for Outagamie County."

Furnish Information
"Compliance with such a request by the other civic parties," Stodola noted, "would be unduly burdensome. The city of Appleton and Outagamie County, however, are free to furnish the kind of information requested by Outagamie County in its comments to the examiner on Nov. 7 and 16."

Ponath said Thursday that Stodola's ruling was not a setback for Outagamie County. "Actually," he said, "he gave us just what we asked for—the opportunity to present our plans at the hearings in January."

In a telephone conversation on Nov. 23 Stodola, in answer to a question from Ponath if Outagamie County will be allowed to submit evidence on the new airport, said, "Yes, you may put in the data as to the new airport."

Ponath asked, "Our rights are protected?"

"You are free to put in any data you want. That's in my last order. You are fully protected in this case."

In his Nov. 19 report, Stodola said the Federal Aviation Agency, which directs airport construction and navigation aids, will not have to furnish data on the proposed new airport because it said at a pre-hearing conference in Washington in October that "it would not participate in the construction of a new air carrier airport for Outagamie County."

He asked, however, for the FAA to furnish estimates for a regional Wisconsin Valley airport, North Central's local stops are now made in Wausau, Stevens Point, Wisconsin Rapids and Marshfield.

Review Work
The committee decided to have all of Schellie's work reviewed to see that terms of the contract have been met, before making the final $13,000 payment to him. The review will be made by the state planning office in Madison. Committee members decided to utilize the state office after hearing Walter K. Johnson, director, say his department could provide the service.

The commission has provided money in its 1963 budget to hire its own staff, should that alternative be approved. There is $8,500 for a planning director and $7,000 for an assistant.

A discussion on having its own staff or continuing with consultant services is scheduled for the Dec. 11 meeting of the commission.

C. W. Wood, commission chairman, said new quarters are necessary for several reasons. More space is needed. Under Schellie's contract he has been responsible for operating and maintaining the present office at 1307 N. Summit St. That contract is expiring.

Took Liberty
Wood said he took the liberty of inquiring about new quarters and found there are rooms available in the Home Mutual Insurance Co. offices at 228 W. College Ave. He said that when Home Mutual moves into its new building near Valley Fair Shopping Center, the regional planning office will be located there.

Motor Scooters

Two motor scooters valued at over $1,000 which were stolen from Baumgart's Sales and Service, 1611 W. Wisconsin Ave., Thursday night have been located by Appleton police and returned to the store.

One 1962 model scooter was found abandoned on N. Mason Street and one at N. Richmond Street. The machines were not damaged, Appleton detectives said. One machine was found about 8:30 a.m., the second was located on N. Richmond Street about 10:30 a.m.

Detectives said the store was entered by breaking a window in the overhead door.

Doctors Testify Amini Was 'Legally Insane' in Slaying

Sheriff, Deputy Also on Stand in Murder Trial of Iranian Student

BY DICK McDANIEL

STEVENS POINT — "He was legally insane," three doctors testified Thursday about Majid Amini Poulard, 27, Tehran, Iran, who is facing first degree murder charges in the May 18 death of Albert Dombrowski, 28, Town of Amherst.

The doctors, one a general practitioner and two psychiatrists, presented the testimony on behalf of the defense, prior to the opening of the rebuttal by the state attorneys.

"I killed him, now I am a murderer," state's witness Chief Deputy Nick Check quoted Amini as saying in an interview between 2:15 and 2:30 a.m. May 18 shortly after Dombrowski died of loss of blood from a neck wound at St. Michael's Hospital.

Had Amnesia
Three of the state witnesses Tuesday claimed they saw Amini swing the broken glass into Dombrowski's neck, inflicting the fatal wounds.

Dr. Robert H. Rifleman, Stevens Point, Amini's personal physician, and the psychiatrists, Dr. Albert Lorenz, Eau Claire, and Dr. Carl L. Kline, Wausau, said Amini's condition indicated he suffered from an amnesia.

Dr. Rifleman used as an example a football player's behavior. The player was hurt in a game and had no recollection of playing.

Dr. Rifleman told the court he had detected signs of anxiety and emotional upset on two previous visits by Amini to his office.

Dr. Rifleman said his examination at 6 p.m. on May 18 indicated Amini had bruises on the head, face, chest and arms, cuts on the hand and a severe bruise of the right cheek bone, in addition to a "moderately elevated blood pressure and irregular heart beat."

He said Amini told him he was confused about happenings earlier in the morning. The doctor said he believed Amini was suffering from a concussion and recommended hospitalization.

The Stevens Point doctor testified Amini was emotionally fatigued and would not have acted in a rational manner in answering questions. "I believe the defendant was legally insane from the time of the blow to the head for an indefinite time," he concluded.

Had Concussion
Dr. Lorenz said Amini had a concussion and was in a "state of mental flight." He said his diagnosis of amnesia was based on Amini's spotty recollection of events after his fight with Dombrowski. He said in Amini's recovery period "he was very susceptible to suggestion."

Under cross-examination by Atty. William Platz, assistant attorney general, Dr. Lorenz said Amini's condition indicated poor mental health but not to a point of needing institutionalization.

Dr. Kline said Amini was tense, anxious, perplexed, depressed, sad and suffering from partial amnesia. He said Amini would start to say something and then "go off on a tangent."

Deputy Check said Amini appeared normal, although tired.

The Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission is facing a big transition period for three reasons, the executive committee said at its meeting Thursday.

2 It then will have to decide if it will establish its own staff or whether another consultant contract will be signed.

3 It must find new quarters. Schellie is scheduled to have all his work finished by the end of the year, including a master plan for the region and local master plans for the municipalities that have requested them.

The committee decided to have all of Schellie's work reviewed to see that terms of the contract have been met, before making the final $13,000 payment to him. # Groundbreaking Set For Germania Hall

Menasha Benevolent Group Plans Special Ceremonies Sunday Noon

MENASHA — A ground breaking ceremony will be held on the site of the proposed new Germania Benevolent Society hall on Broad Street at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

PSC Sets Jan. 2 For Hearing on Waterway Plan

NEENAH — The Public Service Commission has set a hearing for 10 a.m. on Jan. 2 at the courthouse at Oshkosh, on the application of two Neenah men to enlarge a waterway in the Town of Oshkosh.

Lynn Werner and K. P. Wisnack, a co-partnership doing business as Island Point Waterways, 831 Chapman St., Neenah, have filed application with the Public Service Commission for a permit to enlarge the waterway.

Their application states that prior to enactment of a particular law by the state legislature, the existing Island Point Channel on the south was constructed and that George P. Nevitt dug his channel under a Commission permit.

Their proposed channel would connect these two existing channels and is intended to improve water circulation in the real estate development on the Lake Winnebago Shore.

Teachers to Take Civil Defense Survival Course

NEENAH — Teachers from the Neenah and Menasha vocational schools and high schools will participate in a 15 hour Civil Defense training program at the Appleton Vocational and Adult School, beginning Dec. 11. Five have registered to date.

Donald W. Heimlich, supervisor of Civil Defense for adult education, state department, Madison, will be the instructor for 16 licensed teachers from Winnebago and Outagamie Counties who have registered for the course.

Upon completion of this course these teachers will be ready to teach a 12 hour adult education course "Individual and Family Survival." These classes are to be scheduled at each of the Twin Cities vocational schools after the first of the year.

day, it was announced today by Pres. Walter Stommel.

Present at the ceremony will be the building committee headed by Waldo Friedland, officers and trustees of the society and interested members.

"Everyone is welcome," Stommel said, "We hope that the whole community will be interested in this initial step toward the construction of our new $73,000 hall which will begin next week."

Designed by Architects S. J. Baisch Associates, Inc., Kaukauna, the general contractor for the building is William Tiede and Sons, Menasha.

Letting of the sub-contracts will be completed next week and equipment will be moved onto the property the first week in December to begin construction. Completion will be within 180 days.

U Thant Given Full Support of Security Council

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council today recommended unanimously that U Thant of Burma be chosen regular secretary-general of the United Nations to serve until Nov. 3, 1966. The General Assembly was expected to elect Thant this afternoon.

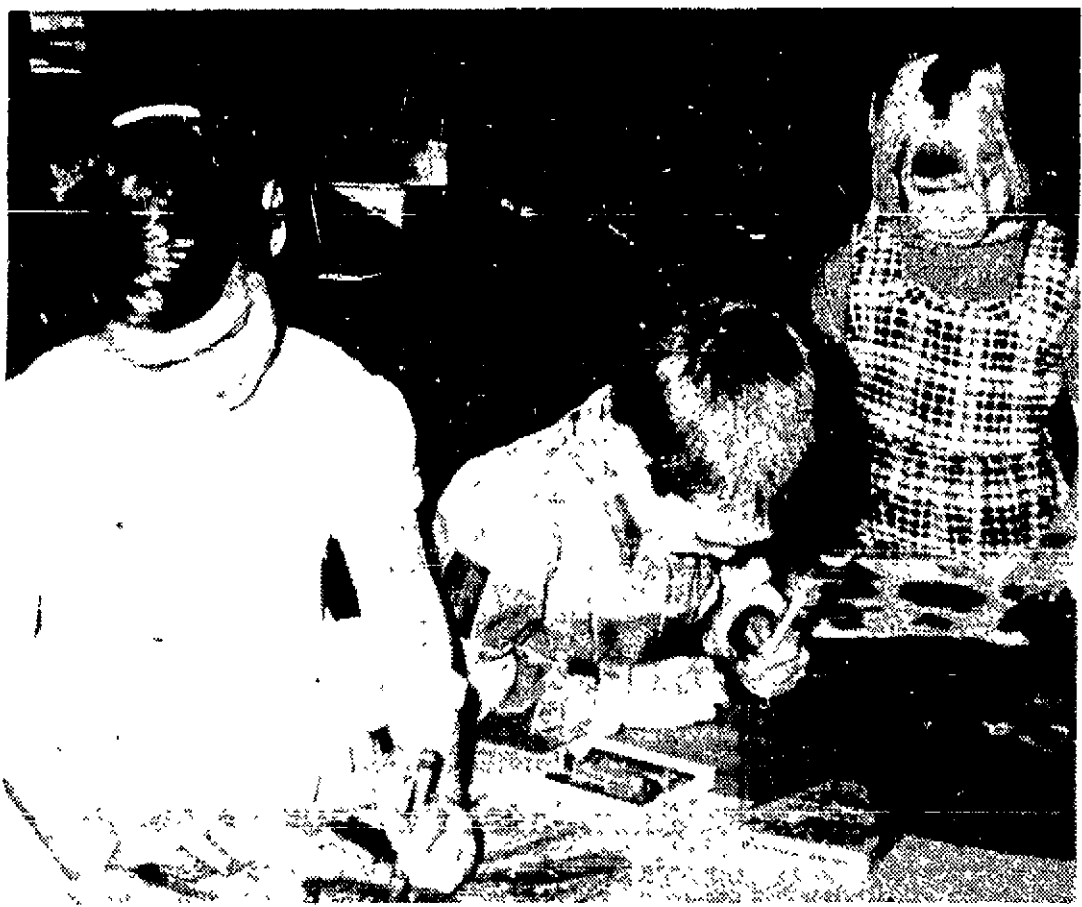

Today's action not only assured the extension of the 53-year-old Burmese diplomat's term for four more years but also dropped the word "acting" which had preceded his title for the past year.

In another vote this morning, the assembly's 110-nation Budgetary Committee recommended that the salary and allowances of the secretary-general be increased by $10,000 from the $53,000 which had been paid since 1946.

The Security Council approved Thant's election at a closed-door session after the United States and the Soviet Union had agreed two days ago to act now. The council resolution was submitted by Ghana on behalf of the six non-permanent members.

Son of Former Pastor

College Organist Will Present Concert for Neenah Lutherans

NEENAH — Prof. William Roth Kenosha, will present an organ recital at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 3 p.m. Sunday. The recital is open to members of the church and their friends, sponsored by the Luther League.

Roth is an instructor in the music department of Carthage College at Kenosha, and is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. S. H. Roth. The Rev. Mr. Roth served as pastor at St. Paul's from 1936 until 1957 when he became pastor emeritus.

The organ program will include: Handel's "Organ Concerto No. 2;" Bach's "Toccata (Dorian) in D Minor;" "Advent Chorale - Sleepers, Wake;" "Siciliano (from Flute Sonata No. 2);" and two chorale preludes from the "Liturgical Year."

In the second portion Professor Roth will present: Pachelbel's — "Christmas Chorale and Fugue;" Langlais' "Rhapsodie on Two Noels" and three 18th Century preludes based on the Reformation Chorale, "A Mighty Fortress."

Concluding the program the St. Paul junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Al Goerlitz, will sing a group of anthems.

A social hour, sponsored by St. Paul's Luther League, will follow the recital, the Rev. Arthur R. Tingley extended an invitation to the friends of St. Paul church in Neenah - Menasha to attend.

Other Events This program is a portion of the opening day's observance of the 50th anniversary celebration of the congregation beginning with the 9 a.m. services Sunday morning. Dr. Theodore E. Matson, Minneapolis, will preach at this and the 10:30 a.m. service. Either of the Sunday services will give members of St. Paul's congregation an opportunity to hear the president of their Wisconsin Upper Michigan Synod. The Synod constituting convention was held at St. Paul's in September of this year and it was here that Dr. Matson was elected to the office he will fill beginning Jan. 1.

The Rev. Arthur R. Tingley, pastor of St. Paul's Church, asks that his parishioners "observe this 50th year in the light of comprehensive stewardship. This

Vandals Hit Sewer Work In Menasha

Damage Estimated At Several Hundred Dollars in Area

MENASHA — Vandals struck again Thursday night in the Clovis - Grove area where Chapel and Amundson Construction Co. of Green Bay is putting in a storm sewer for the City of Menasha, leaving several hundred dollars in damage to a manhole.

Harry Sotcheer, construction superintendent, said stones were dropped into a manhole on Melissa Street north of Ninth street, breaking the iron steps leading into the manhole.

The incidents occurred sometime after 5 p.m., he said.

Extensive Damage The incident was one in a series of vandalistic acts occurring at the project. Damage caused is estimated to run into thousands of dollars. The vandalism has been occurring during a period of about six months, Sotcheer said. The project has been underway for about one year.

Damage to manholes alone is estimated to be more than $1,000. Vandals also have caused extensive damage to water pumps and a caterpillar tractor, which ended up under 29 feet of water.

Teen-agers in the 14 to 15-year-old age group are suspect in the incidents. Several questioned, however, denied having anything to do with the vandalism, although they were caught removing manhole covers. They were released.

Menasha Authorities Keeping Eye Out for Young Bulb-Snatchers

MENASHA — It's not just the kiddies who are keeping an eye on Christmas trees in the City of Menasha.

Police are watching the trees. They are watching the kids, too. They are hoping to stop youngsters from denuding the trees of bulbs. Police say several bulbs are taken each night. Close to 100 have been taken so far.

Police warned youngsters they are keeping their eyes open.

Four Take Papers For Spring Vote

Aldermen, Supervisors, School Board Members Will be Elected

Four Appleton residents took out nomination papers today for the 1963 spring election.

It was the first day for obtaining papers and City Clerk Elden Broehm reminded the deadline for filing is Jan. 29 at 5 p.m.

With the terms of 10 aldermen, 11 county board supervisors and three school board members to expire next year, it is expected that the April 2 election will attract considerable local interest.

The first resident to get papers was Kenneth J. Loos, 806 Winnebago St., the incumbent Third Ward alderman. Loos, who is employed as a welding foreman, has served two terms on the common council.

May Be Contest An indication that there may be a contest in the 17th Ward was that two persons took out nomination papers. Seeking reelection to his fourth term is Ald. Donald Mueller, 500 E. Randall St., a wire weaver.

Also taking out papers for the 17th Ward post was Roy E. Schulze, 714 E. Roosevelt St., a mortician, who has not held any local public office. Ald. Robert J. Stumpf, 2207 S. Greenview St., also took out nomination papers and will be seeking reelection as the Ninth Ward alderman. Stumpf, a chemical engineer, is president of the common council and seeks his fourth two-year term.

Broehm said no papers were taken out up until 1 p.m. for any of the county board or school board positions. Aldermen serve on a part-time basis and receive $1,200 per year, while supervisors are paid $14 per meeting. School board members serve without pay.

Circulate Papers Broehm explained that nomination papers for alderman and supervisor must be circulated within the ward boundaries. The circulator must be an elector of the ward.

Nomination papers for the school board can be circulated citywide without regard to ward boundaries.

Any candidate may circulate his own papers. The maximum number of nomination signers needed to qualify as a candidate for school board is 100, the maximum 516. The number of signatures required for the aldermanic posts vary by ward.

The minimum and maximum number of signatures required for persons running for alderman, listed by ward: First Ward, 2 to 27; Third, 4 to 36; Fifth, 3 to 24; Seventh, 4 to 41; Ninth, 4 to 39; Eleventh, 3 to 26; Thirteenth, 4 to 35; Fifteenth, 2 to 21; Seventeenth, 4 to 42; and Nineteenth, 3 to 26.

For supervisor minimum-maximums are: First Ward, 5 to 47; Third, 4 to 41; Fifth, 3 to 33; Seventh, 3 to 35; Ninth, first precinct, 1 to 12; second precinct, 2 to 23; Eleventh, 5 to 51; Thirteenth, 6 to 37; Fifteenth, 2 to 22; Seventeenth, 6 to 63; and Nineteenth, 5 to 45.

24 $1 Overtime Parking Tickets Cost Driver $126

OSHKOSH — It proved five times as expensive for Louis R. Stille, 22, 463 Mt. Vernon St., Oshkosh, to forget about 24 overtime parking tickets as it would have been to pay the $1 fines on each ticket.

Stille pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon in county court of failing to pay the parking tickets and was fined $126 — an average of $5.25 per ticket — by Judge James V. Sitter.

Judge Sitter scaled the tickets at $2 each for the first five, $3 each for the second five, $4 each for the next four, $7 each for the next five and $10 each for the last five.

Stroebe Island Backed For District Park by Regional Plan Group

Commission Chairman to Appoint Subcommittee to Check Purchase

A fact-finding sub-committee to aid are available, and what procedure the commission must use to acquire the land. A map of the area will be requested, too.

Wood received authority Thursday from the commission's executive committee to name a sub-committee. He indicated the committee would be chosen from among those who signed a letter asking the commission to take "immediate initiative to establish a Stroebe's Island District Park."

CAB Hearing May Influence Funds Question

Proxmire Says Aid For County Airport Needs FAA Approval

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Sen. William Proxmire believes that any Federal Aviation Agency funds for construction or navigation equipment at the proposed new Outagamie County Airport will await the results of Civil Aeronautics Board hearings on regional airline stops in Wisconsin.

Proxmire made this observation in a letter to Francis Evrard, Brown County corporation counsel, in response to a county request to check into an FAA decision awarding air space to the new airport despite conflicts admitted by the FAA. Proxmire included a report from J. M. Beardslee, assistant administrator for the FAA central region.

"In reading and re-reading the (Beardslee) letter, the conclusion can not help but be drawn that the ultimate decision of the Federal Aviation Agency will not be made until after the Civil Aeronautics Board has reached its decision in the (regional airport) investigation," Proxmire wrote to Evrard.

Federal Aid
Beardslee said in the report to Proxmire that the FAA has "advised the Outagamie County Airport and Park Commission that the agency would not consider programming federal aid to airport funds for the development of the proposed airport until a decision has been reached by the Civil Aeronautics Board in the North Central Airline Service airport investigation."

The CAB hearings early next year will explore substituting regional North Central stops for present local stops as a way of improving service and making possible use of larger planes. For the inquiry, the existing Appleton airport is paired with the Oshkosh airport as one possible choice. Green Bay is paired with Clintonville.

While it judged the new airport was "undesirable" from an air space standpoint, the FAA granted air space.

Beardslee said this was possible because:

Serious Delays

The 1472 instrument approaches at Straubel Field last year and the 716 at Oshkosh are less than can be handled without serious delays.

FAA control towers placed in operation in May at Green Bay and Oshkosh can handle this traffic and additional navigation aids can be considered.

Existing instrument procedures for Straubel Field and Oshkosh can be modified so that air space would be available for the new airport "if and when user requirements so dictate."

Asked Action

The letter asking commission action was signed by more than a dozen persons, including three Fox Cities mayors, Amos D. Page, Town of Menasha chairman, representatives of area park and recreation commissions and several community leaders. The letter was read at the executive committee meeting in the regional planning office.

The Stroebe's Island land is recommended as a district park site in the public buildings and facilities report delivered Thursday to the executive committee by Kenneth L. Schellie and Associates, Indianapolis, consultants to the regional commission.

It has happened in the past that district park land has been acquired by communities for only 20 per cent of the land cost, Walter K. Johnson, director of the state planning office in Madison, told the executive committee.

He made the statement in reply to a question on how much aid would be available to the region's municipalities for buying the island.

Pay 50 Per Cent

If information in the report of the fact-finding subcommittee shows that the island park qualifies for state and federal aid, it is possible that the state will pay up to 50 per cent of the cost and the federal government up to 30 per cent, Johnson said.

"I have heard no negative comments on developing the island into a park," Johnson said. "It has cropped up often recently in conservation department discussions. But it has not been considered for a regional park because High Cliff State Forest Park is so nearby," he said.

"We must develop the island into a park," Kaukauna's Mayor Joseph Bayorgeon asserted. "I feel the regional planning commission is obligated to work for and promote its development. It could become a second High Cliff park."

Page said he was sure the island would be available for a park because its owners have often expressed a desire to see it preserved for recreational purposes.

A move has been started to subdivide the island. Several lots already have been sold, Page reported.

Gordon Bubolz, a member of the regional commission, said he personally will make every effort to see that state and federal aid becomes available to the region for acquiring the island.

"The money is there, and I see no reason why this growing, industrial Fox Valley region should not get some of it," he said.

Asked for Advice

The commission's legal committee will be asked for its advice on what authority the commission has to buy the land and who or what organization would have title to it.

The owners have expressed some concern over what will happen to their homes on the island, and their rights to live there, it is reported. A suggestion was made that it might be possible to allow the owners to keep their residences during their life time. The lots and buildings could then revert to whoever has title to the park, and become part of the park.

State Commission Opposes Stopping Manitowoc Service

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — A secret and unannounced meeting of the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission took place in Green Bay Sunday, it was confirmed today.

The 45-minute session reaffirmed the commission's stand in favor of continued North Central Airline stops at Manitowoc.

A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner last week recommended that a new airport at Sheboygan become the North Central stop for both communities on a regional basis.

Donald Love, Green Bay, secretary of the commission, confirmed that the session was held without a prior public announcement. Love said the type of meeting was held over his objections.

"I made myself very unpopular in this matter because I voiced objections to meeting in a closed door atmosphere. I insisted that the meeting not be a formal one and said I could be no part of any formal action," Love said.

Arrange Meeting

Love said the meeting was arranged last Friday by T. L. Jordan, state aeronautics director, because the commission was faced with a 10-day deadline to file objections to the ruling of CAB examiner Edward Stodola in the Manitowoc-Sheboygan case. The next regular commission session, Dec. 7, would have been too late to meet the deadline for objections.

No announcement of the special commission meeting was made by Jordan in Madison.

Love said Green Bay was selected by Jordan for the meeting "to assemble the commission as quickly and as conveniently as possible." The meeting was held in the WBAY building when space at Austin Straubel Field was not available because of national security regulations put in effect because of the Cuban crisis, Love said.

All of the commission members and Jordan flew to Green Bay for the meeting. The other members are Gordon Leonard, chairman, Don A. Olson, vice chairman, Ted Cole and Arlyn West.

The State anti-secrecy act passed in 1959 requires all public bodies to meet in public. Exceptions are made for discussing personnel problems, purchase of land and meeting with lawyers on law suits.

Cited Incident

In an incident involving a La Crosse city commission several months ago, Atty. Gen. John Reynolds ruled that failure to make a public announcement of scheduled meetings could constitute a violation of the anti-secrecy act.

Appleton Will Not Take Action Against C&NW

Next Move Up to Railroad on Suit Over Blocked Street

Apparently satisfied that Appleton residents can continue use of W. North Street without interference, a common council committee has recommended that no further action be taken against the Chicago and North Western Railroad.

Meeting at city hall Thursday night, members of the finance committee took the position the next round, if any, in the street dispute would be up to the railroad.

The committee took its action studying an extensive report prepared by the city's special legal counsel, Sigman, Sigman and Shiff.

It was the opinion of the Appleton law firm that the City of Appleton has the legal right to use W. North Street between Oneida and Superior streets although the property is lawfully owned by the railroad.

Dispute Arose

The dispute over the city's right to use the street erupted last summer when the railroad barricaded the road to the public. Ald. George Buckley and Atty. Karl P. Baldwin subsequently took the matter to court in a citizens' suit and obtained a temporary injunction which called for removal of the barricade.

City officials refused to take over the citizens' suit, and instead, decided to hire special legal talent to research the problem.

Ald. Alvin Tews, finance committee chairman, introduced the motion Thursday night that "the council not proceed with any further action." It was recommended to the common council that it officially receive the report and file it for future reference.

Committee members instructed City Atty. Frederick Froehlich that if the railroad decides to put up another barricade in the future, he should call the police and have them take it down.

At the same time the committee approved payment of $1,100 to Sigman, Sigman and Shiff for the report and other services rendered.

Chicago and North Western officials have made no public comment on the city's position since the legal report was made public last week.

Never Answered

Baldwin commented today that the railroad never answered the citizens' suit and as a result the temporary injunction would remain in effect.

"The burden is on the North Western to take action if there is to be any further litigation," Baldwin said.

"The Sigman report has completely confirmed everything we have said all along—the city has use and the railroad the ownership," Baldwin added.

Ald. Buckley said he was pleased by the Sigman report and declared, "It is my opinion that it has vindicated our original stand and verified the action which we took in keeping the street open to the public."

"Had we not petitioned the court, the barricades might have still been blocking W. North Street," Buckley said.

At the time of the barricade incident, city officials were reluctant to take action. The situation prompted Buckley and Baldwin to instigate the suit.

ices would move into the new building, too.

Wood said he was assured by Gordon Bubolz, president of Home Mutual and a member of the commission, that the rooms could be rented for $100 a month, the amount appropriated in the commission's budget.

The chairman said he felt it would be advantageous for the commission to be in the Home Mutual building, because he understands the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission also will be housed in that building. Bubolz is chairman of the Wolf River commission.

"Having the two regional planning commissions offices in the same building ought to provide liaison and working relationships," Wood said. "Also, it will be convenient for people seeking information on regional planning," he said.

Executive committee members agreed on the building arrangements, but were vociferous in their belief that the two organizations should remain separate units, each with its own identity. There never should be any attempt to merge the two, they said.

MADISON (AP) — The Verfine Dairy Products Corp. of Fond du Lac has been fined a total of $500 on price fixing and price discrimination charges, the attorney general's office reported today.

Atty. Gen. John Reynolds said the fines were levied Thursday by Circuit Court Judge Henry Gergen of Dodge County after the firm declined to contest the charges.

Xavier Seeks Fifth Victory Of Campaign

Duels Columbus '5' In Marshfield Saturday Night

BY RALPH MUELLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Xavier will attempt to connect the fifth link in its victory chain Saturday night at Columbus High School, Marshfield.

Columbus has won two of three games thus far this season and will feature an attack made up of two seniors, two juniors and a freshman.

Coach Bob Olson, in his second year with the Dons, has five let-terms back from last year's quintet which won only three of 20 games. Four of the monogram winners are starters.

Dike Duman (6-1) and Bill By-mers (6-0) are the forwards and Chuck Koch (5-10) and Bob Koch (6-0) are the guards. Clyde Great-house (6-2) is the center. Great-house and By-mers are seniors, Duman and Chuck Koch are juniors and Bob Koch is the freshman.

Top Reserves
Jerry Morzinski and monogram winner Dennis Blum are the top reserves for the Dons.

Thus far, Columbus has defeated Waukesha Memorial, 70-64, and St. John Cathedral of Milwaukee, 49-48. It lost to Superior Cathedral, 70-67.

Coach Gene (Torchy) Clark will start his usual lineup led by "Kip" Whittinger, who is averaging 28.6 points per game on a 115-total.

The remaining starters have scored as follows: Dick Wiesner 32, Pete Zanitz 38, Rocky Bleier 32, and John Heimritz 31.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A flock of defensive lapses, including five by usually alert Detroit, has resulted in a log jam for the first four spots in the National Hockey League standings.

Detroit, which has the best defensive record in the league, set up New York with wide open opportunities and the Rangers blinked the Red Wings 5-0 Thursday night. Chicago flashed past the hapless Boston 5-0 and Toronto blew a three-goal lead and had to settle for a 4-4 tie with Montreal in the other games.

The results left Detroit and Chicago in a tie for first place, each with 26 points, and Toronto and Montreal still knotted for third, each with 22.

The Detroit defense, which had allowed only 36 goals in 19 games collapsed in the second period against New York, with the Rangers ramming in four goals.

Camille Henry scored twice for the Rangers, each on a break away, and sent Andy Bathgate in alone for another one. Jean Ratelle got another and Andy Heb-bert produced the fifth goal while the Rangers had a man in the 100 in something like 9.8 seconds. It was the first shutout of the season for New York's Gump Worsley, who turned in 35 saves.

Stan Mikita scored twice and got an assist in leading Chicago against the disorganized Bruins. Bobby Hull, Elmer Vasco and Ron Murphy scored the other Black Hawk goals.

Chicago goalie Glenn Hall turned back 23 shots in posting his third shutout of the season.

No games are scheduled tonight.

Lawrence will pry the lid off the 1962-63 season tonight when Knox College invades Alexander Gym for a 7:30 p.m. test. At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the Vikes will entertain Monmouth, runnerup in the conference last year.

Some of the questions that Boya has on his mind and that may be answered in part this weekend include these:

1. Will the fact that there are only nine players on the varsity squad hamper the Vikes?
2. Will the 3-letterman nucleus be enough to give the Vikes better balance?
3. Will improved speed offset the lack of height in the fore-court?
4. Can the five sophomores on the team carry as much of the load as they will be expected to handle?

Boya Optimistic

Despite these questions, Boya is optimistic about the season. The lettermen have looked impressive in drills and the sophomores sparked in a game-type scrimmage against the freshmen.

The starting lineup for Lawrence will probably vary from game to game since Boya feels he can substitute any one of his "cagers" in a given situation without hurting the effectiveness of the attack.

One sure starter is Joel Ungrodt, last season's top point-maker. Ungrodt had a 17.3 point average per game against conference foes and was fifth in league scoring.

Ungrodt will be at one guard spot and the other guard will be either junior Steve Nault, sophomore Bill Prange or senior Gary Just. Just also is sometimes used at a forward spot.

Luke Grosz, 6-5 junior will be at center and forwards will probably be Mike Clair, sophomore and Earl Hoover, another second-year man.

Also due to see action will be Ralph Hatley and Larry Gradman, another pair of sophomores.

Knox defeated the Vikes twice last season and has Otis Cowan, a first team all-conference selection, back this campaign. Three other lettermen bolster the Si-washer club.

Monmouth boasts one of the tallest front lines in the conference with the trio average 6-5. Four regulars are back including the team's top scorer, Terry Wilkenson.

'I Play My Spot'

Quinlan Doesn't Chase Footballs Any More

GREEN BAY (AP)—Big Bill Quinlan quit chasing footballs all over the field a few years ago.

As a result he has become one of the finest defensive ends in the National Football League and one of the reasons why the Green Bay Packers are on top in the Western Division.

The former Michigan State star explained his approach to his job after the Packers went through another stiff workout Thursday in preparation for their game with the Los Angeles Rams in Milwaukee Sunday.

"When I was new in this business," Quinlan said, "I used to chase the ball all over the field. But now it's different. I play my spot, cover my responsibility."

"There are several reasons for that, but one thing that finally dawned on me was this: Most of em produced the fifth goal while the Rangers had a man in the 100 in something like 9.8 seconds. It was the first shutout of the season for New York's Gump Worsley, who turned in 35 saves."

Stan Mikita scored twice and got an assist in leading Chicago against the disorganized Bruins. Bobby Hull, Elmer Vasco and Ron Murphy scored the other Black Hawk goals.

Major Leagues Will Return To One All-Star Game in '63

Owners Agree to Relinquish All Claim to Dream Game's Receipts

BY JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—The major leagues will return to one All-Star baseball game in 1963. The game will be played on Tuesday, July 9, in Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The players, through their representatives, reluctantly agreed Thursday to drop the second All-Star game, at the request of the owners, who compromised by agreeing to relinquish all claim to All-Star receipts.

The players previously had received 60 per cent of the receipts, amounting to approximately $300,000. The other $200,000 went to the owners, who used the money, except for the commissioner's 5 per cent, to aid the minors.

Result of Compromise
As a result of the compromise, the players will receive 95 per cent of the one game, or $237,500. The other 5 per cent goes to the commissioner's office for All-Star game expenses.

"We didn't want to buck the press and the public by pushing the second All-Star game down their throats any longer," said Bob Friend, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the National League player representative.

"We wanted the second All-Star game originally only to meet our pension fund payments, and now that we are able to meet the obligations another way, we are perfectly happy with the compromise."

Terms for the settlement were originally proposed by Commissioner Ford Frick, who was stoutly supported by Dan Topping, president of the New York Yankees.

Deserves Credit
"Topping deserves much credit," said Frick. "He was the man who got behind it and pushed it hard."

Judge Robert Cannon, legal advisor of the players, who sat in on the meeting between the 20 player representatives and 20 club owners, said the players were very pleased with the new arrangement.

"I don't think there ever has been better feeling between the owners and the players," he said. "We are perfectly happy."

Frick was in complete accord. "They needed to make up only $25,000 a year in premiums," he said. "So they will be getting that and more."

The two All-Star game setup has been in existence four years. The National League squad won both games in 1959. There were splits in 1960 and 1962. The National won one game in 1961 with the other ending in a tie. The American holds an over-all lead of 17-15 since the mid-summer meetings began in 1933.

Players, Owners Agree
The players and owners also agreed to a change in the proportioning of the World Series money, adding the fifth place teams.

Trojans Are Favored by One Touchdown Ole Miss, Alabama Also Close Seasons

BY BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California, attempting to nail down the national championship for the West Coast for the first time since 1939, goes against rebounding Notre Dame Saturday in the climax game on college football's wind-up weekend of the regular season.

The attractive program also includes such tidbits as the colorful, traditional Army-Navy clash in Philadelphia and closing action for national powers Mississippi, Alabama and Oklahoma.

Mississippi and Alabama are expected to announce acceptance of bids to the Sugar and Orange bowls, respectively, immediately after their games, which would complete the line-up for the major post-season classics.

Southern Cal already has secured the Rose Bowl berth opposite Wisconsin, but must get past the Fighting Irish to complete an unblemished season and retain solid control of the No. 1 spot in the nation.

Bid for Title
Should the Trojans falter—and they're one of the very, very few teams in the country to escape an upset this season—it could seriously jeopardize their bid for the national title, which will be decided in next week's Associated Press poll.

Wisconsin, the No. 2 team in the nation and the Big Ten champ, scored a 17-8 triumph over Notre Dame and the comparison with the Southern California result is inevitable. Wisconsin closed its season last week.

The Trojans rule a one-touchdown favorite to turn back the Irish, but a form reversal is a decided possibility.

Coach Joe Kuharich's lads from South Bend have stormed to four straight victories after a shaky start. They've piled up 119 points, many on the passing combination of Daryle Lamonica to Jim Keely in rolling over Navy, Pitt, North Carolina and Iowa and have history in their favor. Notre Dame holds a 22-9 edge in the series.

Southern Cal, winner of nine straight, is seeking its first unbeaten, untied season in 30 years and the first national title for the West Coast since the Trojans won it 23 years ago.

They have a strong defense and a varied, aggressive attack that features quarterback Pete Beathard, who can run or pass, a swift halfback Willie Brown and powerful, 225-pound fullback Ben Wilson.

A crowd of about 85,000 is expected for the game in Los Angeles, while about 101,000, including President Kennedy, are anticipated for the service classic.

The all-round Hawk star also blocked and caught passes expertly, passed occasionally and punted. On defense, Bleier was outstanding in his linebacking role.

Wilt keeps scoring and the Warriors keep losing.

That's the sad, confusing story of the worried Warriors of San Francisco in the National Basketball Association.

Wilt Chamberlain tossed in 53 points Thursday night, but the Warriors lost their seventh straight, 128-121 to St. Louis.

Syracuse romped over Chicago 112-85 in the only other game on the schedule.

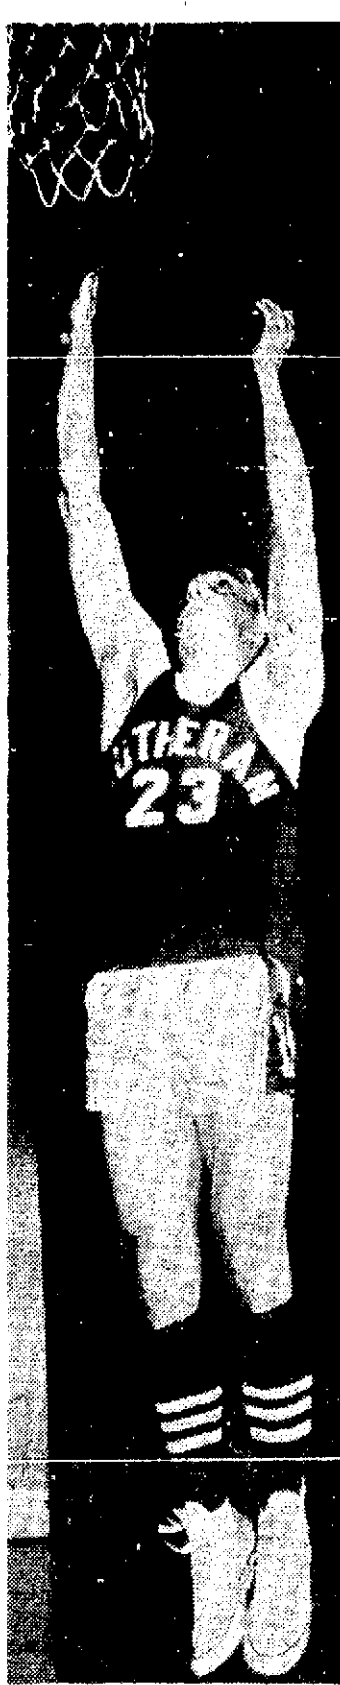

Scoring Burst

A third-quarter scoring burst, some good defensive work by rookie Zelmo Beaty and Bob Pettit's scoring and leadership were the big factors in the St. Louis victory, which pulled the Hawks to within half a game of Western Division leader Los Angeles.

Beaty, a rookie from Prairie View, Tex., who played only in the last half, held Chamberlain to eight points in the third quarter as St. Louis broke from a 58-57 halftime margin to an 11-point advantage going into the final quarter. Pettit led the burst with 14 of his points in that quarter.

Chicago pulled to within three points of Syracuse 58-55 in the third period, but the Nats' Lee Shaffer struck for nine straight points and Syracuse was out of danger.

Shaffer finished with 23 points, which was matched by Chicago's Walt Bellamy.

Marty Jansen Thunders 279

Finishes With 640 Series in Valley League

LITTLE CHUTE — Marty Jansen thundered a 279 game and 640 series to pace make-up games in the Fox Valley League at Little Chute Recreation.

Other honor scores were hit by John Jansen, 604; Vin Jansen, 506, and Francis LeNoble, 586.

Bill Goffard slammed a 234 and a 644 to top the Classic League at Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly.

Other honor scores were hit by Jack Ashauer, 608; Charles Jansen, 597; Clancy Coates, 596; Jack Burton, 584; Clayton Vandenberg, 231, 583; and Dick Weyenberg, 233, 568.

Maybelle Schommer slammed a 233 game and a 524 series to top the Women's League at Little Chute Recreation.

Other honor scores were hit by Grace Jansen, 192, and Lorraine Van Vreede, 513.

Joe Dietzen hit a 243 game and Wayne Kilsdonk a 613 trio to lead the American League at Jerry's Lanes.

Other honor scores were Dietzen, 589; Dick Williamson, 580; Vince Sanderfoot, 238, 577; Pete Reybrock, 576; Cliff Sanderfoot, 574; Joe Van Cuyk, 570; Frank Van Cuyk, 561; John Gaffney, 560, and Bob Boots, 231.

in Philadelphia Stadium. The Army-Navy game also will get national television coverage (CBS, 1:30 P.M. EST).

Coin Toss
It's strictly a pick-em affair between the Cadets and the Mid- dies, with President Kennedy expected to break tradition and go to midfield for the pre-game coin tossing.

Titles and bowl bids don't enter the picture for the colorful clash but Army pride does. Coach Paul Dietzel, hired this season to break Navy's string of three straight, has used his three-platoon magic to forge a 6-3 regular season record. Navy, seeking a record fourth straight over Army, is 4-5.

Mississippi, ranked third in the nation, is a solid favorite to close out an unbeaten, untied season against Mississippi State. Alabama, No. 5 with an 8-1 record, also is favored over a tough Auburn team.

Oklahoma, No. 8, already has the Orange Bowl spot and the Big Eight title, and has little but prestige at stake against Oklahoma State.

EWC Increases Membership to 12 And Splits Into Two Divisions

Howards Grove, Cedar Grove Join Circuit

CHILTON — The Eastern Wisconsin Conference of High Schools Wednesday admitted two new members and hammered through the first major realignment measures in the league's history.

New member schools are Cedar Grove and Howards Grove. This swelled the conference ranks to 12 schools and forced the league to split into divisions so distinct that they are in essence separate leagues.

The larger enrollment schools—Chilton, Plymouth, Kiel, New Holstein, Sheboygan Falls and Valders — comprise one division. Placed in the other division are the two new members, along with Brillion, Elkhart Lake, Oostburg and Kohler.

Radical changes in sports contest scheduling—beginning next year—will be created by the re-vamping. In football, each division school will meet each school in its respective division—a total of five games—and play two schools in the other division for a 7-1 game schedule. However, only the games with division foes count in the standings. Therefore two separate division champions will result with no play-off currently being considered. All members will play conference football.

Same Situation

The same "double champion" situation will hold true in basketball where each school will play a home-and-home schedule with the other schools in its respective division for a total of 10 games that count toward the final divisional titles. Three games with schools from the other division will be scheduled by each school, but as in the football schedule, their results will have no bearing on the divisional standings.

Music and forensic competition will also be conducted within the separate divisions.

It is a considered possibility that the entire league will gather for a true conference track meet, but no definite decision has been reached.

Perhaps the main reason preventing a total split is a safeguard for possible future revision which would again realign the league. It also enables the league to have control of scheduling the intra-division sports contests.

Baseball also came into the picture. Not all of the schools participate in the summer schedule of the Eastern Wisconsin Conference with is likely to draw schools from both divisions.

guards Ron Schenk of Madison West and Mike Sonnenberg of Milwaukee Marquette and center Tom Omholt of Wausau.

A special committee of the Wisconsin Associated Press Sports Writers Association climaxed tedious hours of work by making final choices in close balloting at most positions. Scores of recommendations by coaches, officials and state sports writers were studied before the voting.

As usual, the selection of backs proved an unenviable task because of the wealth of talent in the hundreds of public, parochial and private schools in Wisconsin. However, there were nearly as many nominations for the tackle and guard spots as for the backfield.

Forced to settle for second team berths were backs Mickey Vandehey of Auburndale, Ron Kirkland of West Bend, Dave Colburn of La Crosse Central and Larry Koplit of Oshkosh; ends Tony Kaboord of Sheboygan South and Jerry Daanen of East De Pere; tackles Dave Katz of Whitefish Bay and John Cinealis of Sheboygan South; guards John O'Connell of Green Bay East and Bill Melaas of Beloit, and center Jim Kurwitz of Milwaukee Rufus King.

Chosen for the third team were backs Dick Wiesner of Appleton Xavier, Bob Hickman of Madison West, Tom Beitingner of Schofield, D. C. Everest and Vic Johnson of Monona Grove; ends Dave Johnson of Monona Grove and Ed Cretns of South Milwaukee; tackles Bill Stetz of Waukesha Memorial and Jim Long of Eau Claire Memorial; guards Mike Miller of Neenah and Phil Hinko of Prairie du Chien Campion, and center Dick Glaser of Green Bay West.

Scores 13 Touchdowns
Hoeschler, who stands 6 feet and weighs 180, and Jankowski, a 6-1, 197-pound pile-driver, were outstanding in leading La Crosse Aquinas and Whitefish Bay to highly successful seasons. Hoeschler scored 13 touchdowns, setting a La Crosse city record by rushing for 1,115 yards and was a hawk on defense, intercepting six passes. Jankowski, like Hoeschler, sought by a score of colleges, had a fantastic season, scoring 148 points on 22 touchdowns and 16 extra points, rushing for 1,042 yards, catching seven passes for 151 yards and returning six punts for 81 yards. A linebacker on defense, he was third in tackles on the Suburban Conference's top team.

Kampman, who stands only 5-9 and weighs 150, directed Sheboygan South to the Fox River Valley championship with an 8-0 record. One of the finest ball handlers ever developed in Sheboygan, Kampman was credited with making South's awesome ground attack "go." He used the pass as an auxiliary weapon, completing 25 of 54 shots for 552 yards. Kampman's all-around skill enabled him to edge Vandehey for the quarterback spot on the All-State team.

20 TD Passes
Mestelle, a spread end, sparked Ladysmith to its second straight undefeated season and the Heart O' the North championship. A 165-pound speedster, he caught 30 passes for 881 yards and 20 touchdowns this year. He also contributed six extra points.

Schumann, a 170-pounder, also played a spread end, although Madison West was mainly a running team. A linebacker on defense, he was the top vote-getter among ends for the All-Big Eight Conference Team.

The competition for tackles and guards was extremely close with many beefy but speedy nominees. Finally chosen for the first team were Eisenmann, a 237-pound tackle on Peshtigo's undefeated squad; Ruedebusch, a unanimous tackle choice on the All-Badger Conference Team the past two years; Schenk, 185-pound brother of the University of Wisconsin star, and Sonnenberg, a 222-pound member of the Milwaukee area's Catholic Conference all-star team in 1961-62.

Omholt, who weighs 170, edged Kuritz, a 230-pound standout, for top honors at center. A fine blocker on offense, Omholt played

Appleton Man Pleads Guilty of Restaurant Theft

A 21-year-old Appleton man who escaped to Chicago but returned immediately to Appleton and surrendered to police, pleaded guilty Thursday to burglary of the King Bee Restaurant, 106 S. State St., Monday night.

Thomas P. Dorn, 1914 S. Bouten St., was ordered held without bond until Dec. 19. He waived a preliminary hearing before County Judge Gustave Keller in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2.

The man was questioned by two Appleton police who spotted him near the restaurant about the time the restaurant was entered. However, the break-in was not reported to police until the following morning.

About $50 was taken from the restaurant. Entry was gained by breaking a plate glass door at the front entrance of the building. The man told police he took a train to Chicago after the break-in and rented a room at a hotel. However, he said, he checked out of the hotel immediately and took the train back to Appleton. The following day, Wednesday, he gave himself up to Appleton police.

Babe Ruth League Elects Officers

The Appleton Babe Ruth League elected two new officers and re-elected two others in a meeting at the South Side Athletic Club Tuesday night.

ning Commission to deal with river basin development problems in an official way.

Give Helping Hand

"The planning commission," he said, "would be dedicated to giving a helping hand when needed, in protecting the river basin resources, in promoting its economic development and in conserving the wildlife and recreational resources of the region in a way that will give the public the most for its expenditures."

Representing the Wisconsin Conservation Department at the meeting were Cy Kabat, research and planning director, and Harold Steinke, in charge of the basin areas' Outdoor Recreational Program.

Kabat said the department will make a comprehensive report to the Regional Planning Commission at its Dec. 13 commission meeting. The report will include its land acquisition program.

Abundant Area

Steinke emphasized the value of the Wolf Basin for its wildlife, fish and game assets. Because it is such an abundant area we should love, respect and recognize its value to our future through good planning and management, he said.

"The Wolf," he noted, "is still one of the greater recreational areas of the country. Much of it still untouched and in its virgin state."

Gordon Bulbol, chairman of the Wolf River Regional Planning Commission, spoke on the relationship of the planning commission to voluntary organizations. He outlined the broad research and planning goals of the planning commission, which he said will be divulged more fully at the Dec. 13 meeting of the commission.

Protects Committee

The Improvement Association selected Dr. H. R. Trombley, Appleton; Waddie Nader, Marlin Fuerst and Harvey Romberg, New London, and Roy Spearbreaker, Clintonville, as members of its projects committee. The group will look into possible land acquisition to improve the wildlife program, and suggest sites for camping and boat launching facilities. Dr. Trombley was named chairman of the group. The Rev. Mr. Lange is an ex officio member.

Elected to offices in addition to the Rev. Mr. Lange, was Wilbert Knaack, Manawa, vice president. Re-elected as treasurer and secretary, respectively, were Douglas W. Hanson, New London, and Armin H. Gerhardt, Jr., Appleton.

when he was talking to him at the sheriff's office a short time after he returned from the hospital.

Sheriff Emil Meshak related Amini's first recollection of the fight about 4:50 a.m. May 18 at the jail. He said Amini claimed Dombrowski was on his (Amini's) bar stool at Morey's Bar, and the fight started when Dombrowski refused to move and called Amini "a black S.O.B." and told him to "get out of here."

Had Hit Him

Meshak said Amini said the "big man" hit him and knocked him to the floor, then grabbed him by the head and hit him in the face. Amini told the sheriff he groped for something and then found the glass and shoved it into Dombrowski's face.

Sheriff Meshak quoted Amini as saying he did not want to hurt Dombrowski, but "just to scare him." Sheriff Meshak also quoted Amini as saying on May 25 at the Wausau hospital. "There will be no trouble between your country and my country because one burn died."

Dist. Atty. John Haka questioned Mrs. Robert Powers, Madison, the former Miss Mary Ann Boeyink, Mosinee, a former college student, about a beer party at her parent's home.

Gave Challenge

Mrs. Powers said the party moved to a tavern, where Amini and another student argued and Amini challenged him to a fight.

So far, the state has presented 13 witnesses and defense attorneys, Midtown and Byron Crowns, Stevens Point, have presented 13.

In the state's cross examination of Amini Thursday, Platz asked Amini about the oath he took. Amini said he was a Moslem, but Americans fail to realize "Allah" is "God."

Sheridan Loses Soo Line Depot In PSC Ruling

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—The Soo Line depot at Sheridan, in the Town of Farmington, Waupaca County, will become a footnote to the history of the community.

The railroad has been given the approval of the Public Service Commission to withdraw custodial service, remove the depot building and discontinue less-than-carload freight service at the site.

The commission said that the Gross Common Carrier Service is providing substitute freight service to and from the unincorporated community and that railroad agency service is provided at Waupaca, about seven miles southeast, and Amherst, about seven miles northwest.

Appleton Couple Granted Divorce

OSHKOSH — Clara Mae Hildeman, 32, Appleton, was granted a divorce this morning from Donald Hildeman, 34, Appleton, by County Judge Herbert J. Mueller.

She was granted custody of their child, and he was ordered to pay $10 a week support until September, 1963, and $17.50 a week thereafter. There also was a property settlement.

The first regular meeting of November of the Board of Education was held in the Superintendent's office on Monday, November 12, 1962 at 7:15 p.m.

Present: Amos Munro, Heil and Messrs. Buchanan and Neils.

Motion was made by Mrs. Heil, seconded by Mr. Neils, that the minutes of October 22, 1962 be approved. Carried.

Representatives of the former Badger School District, Mr. Hansen and Mr. James Davies, appeared before the Board for the purpose of discussing the question as to whether the Badger District is entitled to a credit of approximately $2,200.00 for 1962.

After considerable discussion, it was agreed that the Appleton Board of Education and former Badger School District Board should jointly request an opinion from the Attorney General through the district attorney and the State Department of Public Instruction.

The question of granting credit for existing supplies at the time of attachment of the question and report at the next meeting.

Mr. Kurtz presented the Superintendent's Fiscal Report.

San Marino Learns To Live With Little

Tiny Republic Owns Distinction Of Being Won Back From Reds

BY JAMES M. LONG

SAN MARINO (AP)—This oldest and tiniest republic has learned to make a lot out of a little.

There is no public debt or unemployment. There hasn't been a murder in over a century. With postage stamps and its fingernail polish, the 38-square mile country has no troubles that a good tourist season doesn't solve. Every year two million tourists come in to spend a little time and a lot of money among the 15,200 San Marinenses.

San Marino claims one further distinction. It is the only European country ever won back from communism.

According to San Marino history, a persecuted Christian stone-mason fled here from Dalmatia and founded the republic 1,600 years ago. He later became St. Marinus and gave his name to the nation perched atop rocky Mt. Titano, 1,560 feet high and 12 miles inland from Rimini on Italy's Adriatic Coast.

Sole City
The capital and sole city, San Marino, still looks medieval with its ancient walls, its three famous castles, and its cobbled streets too steep and too narrow for automobiles.

But San Marino bustles with modern ways.

Tiny factories and souvenir shops provide so many jobs that 3,000 Italians commute to San Marino to bolster the working force.

Italy, which completely surrounds San Marino, pays the little country a million dollars a year because San Marino lets Italy collect its customs tax on imports.

San Marino does its own collecting on postage stamps, selling almost a million dollars' worth a year. Forty-five employees are kept busy in the post office selling them. The stamps are printed in Rome.

San Marino residents pay a 14 per cent tax on income. There is an additional tax of 5 to 8 per cent on direct profits from tourism.

San Marino's nail polish is exported all over the world. More than 1½ million bottles are sold annually.

There also is handsome profit from the sale of wines—red Sangiogiose, white Albana, and sweet San Marinese moscato. More wine is sold than can be grown in the cramped mountainside vineyards—some is imported from Italy's Asti region and bottled here.

San Marino has made a few demands for outside financial aid. In 1957 the United States provided $850,000 to help build an aqueduct. The British paid $224,000 to settle claims for World War II reparations. Their planes bombed San Marino by error June 24, 1944, killing 59 persons.

San Marino was neutral in the war and thousands of persons, many of them Jews, fled here for refuge.

After the war San Marino went Communist. The Communists lost the government in the strange revolution of 1957.

That started when Mother Superior Veronica Serri reopened a Catholic school at a convent which the Communist government had ordered closed.

Grand Council
The dispute over what to do about it grew bitter in the Grand Council, San Marino's ancient legislature. The Communist-Socialist alliance had 31 of 60 council seats, but two Socialists affected and joined the Christian Democrats.

Chief executives of San Marino are two joint captains-regent elected for six month terms by the council. The Communist and Socialist regents then in office, seeing their alliance jolted out of the majority, dissolved the council and ordered new national elections. They called out San Marino's 83-man volunteer army with its blue and silver uniforms and World War I rifles. They called out the 74-man palace guard with its green trousers and scarlet jackets. They called out the 32-man police force with its blue and white berets and its Italian police uniforms.

The regents ordered them to keep the grand council closed.

The Christian Democrats raised San Marino's blue and white flag over an abandoned iron foundry and declared themselves the legal government.

The iron foundry was well chosen. It stood only 100 yards from the frontier. Right across the border, Italy moved up a heavily armed force of police to stand guard. Italy also moved up light armored troops who cut off every road leading into San Marino. Italy called it "routine fall maneuvers."

The situation was explosive. There were fist fights in Freedom Square before the 15th century government building. Armed men from both camps marched the streets.

Then, after a week of nerve-wracking strain, moustached Domenico Morganti, the Communist interior minister, ordered his militia to yield.

"We have no choice," he said bitterly. "We are under siege by an enormous force of foreign troops."

On that last day the only shots of the revolution were fired.

As each Communist militiaman marched up to police to turn in his rifle, he fired one defiant shot into the air.

"That's just to prove we could have fought," a spokesman said. "We had bullets in our guns."

The police and the army didn't. "My men carry carbines," said Capt. Ettore Sozi, highest officer of San Marino's little army. "But we never issue any bullets. My men have never had any firing practice. If they had ammunition they might only hurt themselves."

San Marino slipped peacefully back to its pleasant life and profitable tourist trade. The government has had an anti-Communist majority ever since.

Criminal Trespass Counts Dismissed In Waupaca Court

WAUPACA—Charges of criminal trespassing were dismissed by Municipal Justice George Whalen against four Waupaca hunters this week.

Friday, November 30, 1962 Appleton Post-Crescent B9

Wayland Simpson Jr., Ewald Gyldenven, Graham Morehouse and Dennis Schoenick pleaded innocent when they were arraigned on the same night with the three other men but no guns, and looked for the deer.

A charge of hunting after hours also was dismissed against Simpson. Testimony indicated Simpson wounded a deer with an arrow on Oct. 19 in the Town of Farmington. He returned about 10 p.m. on the same night with the three other men but no guns, and looked for the deer.

Ward Olson, on whose farm the men were searching, saw their light and called the wardens.

Nason on Education

Help From Tutor May Not Be Right Aid for Student

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D.

Professor of Education, University of Southern California

When their youngster's grades begin falling in school, many parents think about hiring an outside tutor. Is it wise? The problem is bothering this parent:

Dear Dr. Nason:
Our son is having trouble with intermediate algebra in his 11th grade class. He had difficulties in each of his first two semesters of algebra in the ninth grade, but finally made good grades with the help of a tutor.

Would you advise hiring a tutor again?

B. S., Oakland, Calif.

Tutors help students pass courses but sometimes they leave them weaker rather than stronger as students. They help solve the immediate problem of passing the course, but too often this consists of help in solving specific problems and cramming for tests.

If his tutor in ninth grade algebra straightened out his learning procedures your son certainly would not be in trouble again in the same subject!

Try to choose a tutor this time who can help him learn HOW to study mathematics.

Dear Dr. Nason:
Our daughter is engaged to a man (25) who quit school after only two years of high school. She is a junior at college. How can we help him? Where would we start to close the gap?

B. J., Marshall, Mich.
Successful marriages are not easily achieved with such a difference in education. I suggest that the young man enter a junior college, complete high school and make plans for closing the educational gap between him and your daughter before they marry.

A college counselor will be glad to help him plan such a program. Adults can complete high school graduation requirements in less time by taking courses at the college level. These courses also form an excellent foundation for additional college work.

Dear Dr. Nason:
Our junior high school daughter started school this year with great enthusiasm. Now she seems to be losing interest. She spends little time at homework. We ask her what she is supposed to be doing, but get evasive answers.

What can we as parents do to reawaken her interest?

A. C., Waverly, Ohio
Many students appear to lose interest in school at this time of year. Some are accused of being lazy. In working with such students I find they more often lack skill in doing school work.

This is the time in a semester when parents should try to analyze the school problems of such children and give prompt help. A teacher, one of your daughter's school friends, or perhaps a friend of the family should talk over all the elements of your daughter's school life with her.

Whether it is reading, writing, or some other skill that needs attention often can be determined. Sometimes it is merely a lack of teacher, one of your daughter's school friends, or perhaps a friend of the family should talk over all the elements of your daughter's school life with her.

Business Must Adjust to New Rules of Game

Era May Have Ended As Profits Don't Rise Automatically

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—A lot of businessmen have the feeling that some of the old rules of the game are being changed. Like it or not, they'll have to adjust.

And the same could well apply to workers, investors, savers, debtors, and in time to consumers—which is to say to everybody.

Making money may be a different proposition from now on than during the 17 years since the end of World War II. During most of that time profits rose, personal incomes went up even faster, the cost of living climbed—all of this almost automatically.

Has that era ended? Is a new one starting, with new rules to be learned, new dangers to be overcome?

No Longer Soar

Businessmen who complain of the squeeze on profits are saying today that it has. Earnings no longer soar automatically with sales volume. Management blames still rising production costs, high taxes, price weakness. Many see in the gyrations of the stock market evidence that the era of inflation is over, that stock prices now are tied closer to individual company performance and prospects.

Here are some of the factors that have brought on the era of the profit squeeze, and some that may guide management in dealing with it in the changing business climate:

Production costs have climbed steadily as wage scales rose each year. Until recently the cost of most industrial materials has gone up annually. The cost of transportation and distribution and the increasing number of services required along the way from producer to consumer, still tends to increase.

That is one part of the squeeze. For years, the prices of finished goods themselves rose, too. And there was no squeeze.

But today it's hard to raise prices. And here's why:

During the easy profit years, many fields became crowded with new firms wanting in on a good thing and old ones diversifying for the same reason. Today these fields often seem overcrowded. The competition is keen, and one company can't raise prices because his rivals won't. In more than one industry there's idle capacity that could be put to work—if there were any profit in it. And complicating all this is the sudden spurt of foreign goods turned out by industries built up after the war and now looking for more markets.

New Guide Lines

Finally, there are new guidelines laid down by the federal government, designed to discourage general price increases or inflation brought on by labor demands that Washington might label excessive. Management got the word from government in the squabble over the steel price hike attempt last April. Many in management are skeptical about how the longer soar automatically with sales volume. Management blames still rising production costs, high taxes, price weakness. Many see in the gyrations of the stock market evidence that the era of inflation is over, that stock prices now are tied closer to individual company performance and prospects.

And if profits are held down, companies will find it harder to raise funds to modernize plants or build new ones. This could mean fewer new jobs, as well as loss of markets at home and abroad to foreign competitors.

And a third factor—the role of government in business decisions.

Production costs have climbed steadily as wage scales rose each year. Until recently the cost of

Roger Blough Tells Story About Steel

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Slashes in steel dividends. . . A lagging demand for steel even in the face of a boom auto year and the Cuban showdown. . . Steel prices being cut in dramatic contrast to the attempt of the industry last spring to hike prices across-the-board. . . Drastically shrinking profit margins, intensifying competition to steel from other materials at home and from an increasing volume of low cost foreign steel imports. . .

What is wrong? Why? What is the outlook? Here, from Roger Blough, chairman of giant U.S. Steel and the man who triggered last spring's steel price rise crisis, are answers to key questions about one of America's most basic industries.

Porter: Which is the most important force behind the recent steel price cuts—competition from foreign steel producers or competition from manufacturers of rival materials or competition among the U.S. steel companies themselves?

Blough: Lower-priced foreign competition has certainly been a very major factor, but the competition among U.S. steel companies has been just as important, possibly more so. The impact of competition from aluminum and plastics has been more on new products than on prices. We would eventually have developed "thin tin" which competes with aluminum, but the competition may have influenced the timing.

Foreign Labor

In the case of foreign steel the lower prices often simply reflect the much lower hourly labor costs in foreign countries. Also, it has been charged that foreign steel is being "dumped" into this market by foreign producers who are selling it for less here than they do at home. We have anti-dumping statutes in this country, and I understand that the Treasury Dept. already has started some investigations of this.

Porter: How are you going to meet the competition from foreign steel imports?

Blough: One way we CANNOT meet it is by reducing our prices below our costs. Foreign steel prices run from $20 to $40 per ton under our domestic prices on the same products. Taking a composite average price for all types of steel products, the current price of steel in the U.S. runs about $170 per ton. Last year steel industry profits on sales (after taxes) were 5.2 per cent, about $9 a ton.

Clearly, we absolutely could not reduce our prices enough to meet the foreign competition.

One thing we can do is offer better service, such as prompt deliveries and expert technical guidance on manufacturing problems. We already have a large edge here. We also can offer quality which is second to none. Then, we must keep developing new products. We have more and better research centers in the steel industry today than ever before and last spring's steel price rise crisis, at a rate of one new or greatly improved product a month for U.S. Steel alone, are constantly increasing in usefulness and value to the consumer. We can develop new types of steel to serve completely new purposes.

Finally, we must improve our steelmaking plants to compete with foreign steelmaking equipment, which is mostly new since World War II. We have been having trouble on how to pay for this investment but I think we are beginning to make progress.

Porter: Now that costs and wages are rising rapidly in other countries, won't this tend to equalize prices and help the steel industry regain lost markets?

Sell Steel

Blough: In percentages European prices are going up faster than here, but steel is sold in dollars and cents.

The fact is our total employment costs, including fringe benefits, are roughly three times costs in the Common Market and six times costs in Japan. We must hold down our costs, improve our plants and equipment, develop more ingenious management techniques.

Porter: What is your judgment of the outlook then?

Blough: Despite the problems, I am more optimistic now than I have been in several years about the future of our industry.

State Beet Production Nears Record

Cucumber, Carrot Produce Also Rise Above 1961 Level

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Near-record packs of beets and carrots and a cucumber production of about one third below that of last year have been reported for the state this year by the Wisconsin Canners Association.

The Wisconsin beet pack of 3,833,000 cases was 28 per cent above last year and the largest in history except for the 1956 season, while canned carrot production rose 13 per cent over last year and was the largest ever recorded except for 1958. The carrot pack total this year was nearly 900,000 cases.

Cucumber production was put at about 35,500 tons, which is about 19 per cent below the ten year average. Normally Wisconsin is second only to Michigan in cucumber output but this year North Carolina and California also produced more. The Wisconsin yield this year was reported at two and one half tons to the acre, against about 3.26 tons last year.

Farm Bureau Elects New Officer Slate

Officers have been elected by the board of directors of the Outagamie County Farm Bureau.

They are Joe J. Weyers, President; Lambert Kramer, Vice President; Gilbert Laabs, Secretary-Treasurer.

Members of the executive committee are Donald Vande Hei and George Jeske.

Directors and their towns, they are from:

Roy Schucknecht, Black Creek; Clifford Conradt, Bovina; Franklin Knutzen, Center; Duane Sommer, Dale; Alfred Poppe, Bear Creek; Joe J. Weyers, Freedom; Anthony Bohman, Ellington; Richard Van Handle, Grand Chute; Albert Ulmer, Greenville; Gilbert Laabs, Horton; Gerald Van Stein, Kaukauna; George Jeske, Liberty; Nelson Grandy, Maine; Herbert Vande Corput, Oneida; Melvin Blohm; Donald Vande Hei, Seymour.

Frank Weyers, Lambert Kramer and Darrel Bottrell are directors at large. Mrs. Donald Vande Hei is President of the Associated Women with Mrs. Wilmer Mueller, Vice President and Mrs. Donald Gehring, secretary-Treasurer.

A Purebred Heifer Holstein calf was awarded to Terry Muenster, Lucky Star 4-H Club, route 4, Appleton. From left are Paul Nagen, manager of Outagamie Equity Cooperative, Terry and William Marcks, Black Creek. The animal was purchased from Marcks by the co-op and presented to Terry as outstanding junior member in the dairy project. The boy's family has no registered Holstein in the home herd. ## Most Crop Yields in State Above Average

Expect 64 Bushels of Corn Per Acre This Year, Compared to Record 73 of 1961

Yields per acre of practically all crops harvested in Wisconsin this year are above average although many are lower than a year ago, according to the Wisconsin Crop Reporting Service.

Wisconsin's November crop report indicated farmers as a whole had a good crop year although production was disappointing in some areas. October weather until about the end of the month was favorable to maturing of late crops, pastures, and fall plowing. However, much of the corn for grain was still in the fields at the beginning of November because of high moisture content.

Grain corn prospects remained unchanged from October to November with the estimate at a little over 100 million bushels. Yields per acre are expected to average 64 bushels compared with the record of 73 bushels last year. Production may be 17 per cent below a year ago but above average.

Some farmers picked corn in October, others plowed, and a few harvested a late crop of hay. Hay production of more than 9½ million tons is 6 per cent above last year and 14 per cent more than average.

Most of the potatoes were harvested by the end of October with the last fall crop reaching the all-time high average of 230 hundredweight per acre. However, because of the reduced acreage, the fall crop of a little over 7 million hundredweight will be 5 per cent below last year's record production. Total production, late summer and fall potatoes, of 10½ million hundredweight will be 8 per cent below last year but 40 per cent above average.

Awards Presented at Woodlawn 4-H Club

Outagamie 4-H Agent In Chicago

CHICAGO—Courtney Schwartz, Appleton, the Outagamie County 4-H Club Agent, is attending the 16th annual meeting of the National Association of County 4-H Club Agents here.

Sessions are being conducted at the Pick-Congress Hotel.

Schwartz is one of about 150 delegates attending the meeting. Theme of the meeting is "Streamlining Our Ships" with workshops in the area of Leadership, Membership and Salesmanship.

Speakers for the meeting include R. Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps Director, Washington, D.C.; Dr. G. L. Carter, managing editor, Journal of Cooperative Extension, Madison; Milo Downey, director, 4-H and Youth Programs, federal extension service, Washington, D.C.; and Mr. R. O. Monosmith, state 4-H Leader, California.

Agents attending the 1962 annual meeting, in addition to taking part in the workshops of leadership, membership, and salesmanship, will have an opportunity to attend several events at the National 4-H Club Congress in session through Thursday, Nov. 29, at the Conrad-Hilton Hotel.

County 4-H personnel have organized NACCA to foster the highest ideals of 4-H Club work and to develop nationally the profession of County 4-H Youth Workers.

UW Official Lauds Farm Bureau in Speech at Madison

Establishes Himself as Friend Of Farmer as Did Predecessor

MADISON — No farmer is Dr. Harrington to World War I. But there Fred H. Harrington, the newly inaugurated president of the University of Wisconsin, asserted.

And some farmers whose regard for the university is high have wondered about the new chief. They had fond regard for his predecessor, the late Dr. Conrad Elvehjem, noted biochemist whose background was in the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Monday night Dr. Harrington established himself, too, as a friend of the farmer.

Spoke at Dinner

The University president spoke at the farm family dinner during the convention of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation. More than 400 men and women attended the event, which was held in Great Hall of the Memorial Union on Harrington's campus.

"Though no farmer, I know how much agriculture has meant to this university. My whole academic life has been spent at institutions where agriculture plays a key part including Cornell and Arkansas before I came to Wisconsin," Dr. Harrington remarked.

Agriculture must be important to a university, he asserted, because it is vital and basic to a nation. He said his study of history, which has been his profession, led him to that conclusion.

British Farms Faltered

Alert Farmers To Drug Use

Antibiotics Can Attack Organisms That Animals Need

The American Foundation for Animal Health today issued a special warning to farmers to be alert regarding the proper use of antibiotics on livestock.

Three major dangers which must be guarded against were cited as: antibiotic sensitivity, antibiotic resistance and the fact that antibiotics can attack helpful as well as harmful organisms in an animal's body.

Sensitivity is the most dramatic danger and although it may not kill an animal, it can sometimes reverse the disease process and magnify the illness. The sensitivity may sometimes be produced through frequent and indiscriminate use of some of the so-called "wonder drugs". Any reaction can be serious and should be checked upon immediately by a veterinarian.

Resistance by some strains of livestock disease organisms can also develop through indiscriminate use of some drugs. As a result, tough, hard-to-treat, hard-hitting disease organisms may survive on farms where antibiotics have been used rather freely.

When antibiotics are used, and if they destroy some of the "friendly" organisms in an animal's body, the drugs actually may set back the recovery of treated animals.

Antibiotics have been a boon in the treatment of many serious diseases of livestock. But, unless they are used properly, the result can sometimes be the opposite.

Wolf River 4-H Has Achievement Event in Leeman

LEEMAN — The Wolf River Beaver's 4-H Club had its annual achievement day program at the Maine Town Hall Sunday evening. Marguerite Wintefeldt presented "The 4-H Club Story."

Fair checks and club pins were presented and each member gave a brief explanation of the project he carried through the year. Record books were handed out.

Blue ribbon awards went to Ray Gomm, David Taubel, Kathleen McAuly and Lynn Kleist. Leadership award certificates went to Mrs. Joseph Taubel and Harold and Ben Schinke.

Plans were made for a Christmas party at the Ben Schinke home Dec. 4.

Researchers Find Body Chemistry Of Pig Continues After Slaughter

MADISON — When a hog is slaughtered, his body chemistry doesn't stop immediately, and the chemical changes that take place just after death have a lot to do with how good the meat will be.

Research at the University of Wisconsin in recent years has shown that one of the most important of post-mortem chemical changes is the breakdown of glycogen—animal starch—into mild acids. These acids—though harmless to humans—are undesirable because they bring about the pale, soft, watery condition of the pork that consumers often complain about.

Researchers have known for some time about the glycogen—quality relationship. In earlier work they have shown that it is possible to decrease muscle glycogen by starting with the acids are produced just before or just after death while the carcass is still at body temperature—they do much more damage than if they are produced later on.

This is easy to understand since chemical reactions go faster at high temperatures. So if the meat is warm the acids "work on" the proteins very rapidly. After chilling, the reactions slow down greatly. So if the acids aren't present at slaughter time or aren't produced quickly after death, they don't do as much harm.

In tests with three swine breeds, the research men found some important differences, both in the amount of glycogen present in the muscle and in the rate at which it is broken down. They compared Hampshires, Poland Chinas, and Chester Whites.

Slamups had by far the most glycogen in their muscle tissue—nearly three times as much as the others. However, the rate of glycogen breakdown was slower in Hampshires than in Poland Chinas. Though they started with the lowest glycogen content, the Poland Chinas showed the fastest rate of glycolysis and produced more pale, watery pork than the others. The Chester White fell between the other two breeds in amount of glycogen, but had the slowest conversion rate.

Emphasize Difference The researchers emphasize that these tests were with strains of hogs on the University farm. The findings may not apply to all pigs in any of the breeds.

Just what causes differences in rates of glycogen breakdown isn't clear, the research men say. They suspected that the enzyme phosphorylase might be the key, since it is known to be involved in converting glycogen into energy to haven't been able to find a direct link. Tests showed no correlation between phosphorylase activity and rate of glycolysis.

In another test the researchers withheld feed from the pigs for 70 hours just before slaughter. They found that this group had much less glycogen at slaughter time, presumably because the pigs used the stored carbohydrate to make up for the lack of food. This finding suggests that fasting may be a practical way to control glycogen content, the researchers say.

Exciting the pigs just before slaughter makes the glycogen picture worse, according to another experiment. Excitement apparently causes the pigs to start converting glycogen into energy to meet the "emergency," then this process continues at a rapid rate after death.

The researchers excited the pigs by prodding them with electric shockers and slappers, duplicating the treatment animals often get when they are being driven to the slaughter floor.

The animal scientists involved in this work for the past year have been R. N. Sayre, E. J. Briskey and W. G. Hoekstra.

Hog Show Set For February

Open to Wisconsin Junior and Adult Swine Producers

Dates for the 13th annual Wisconsin Spring Market Hog Show were announced this week by co-chairmen Robert Thayer and Fred J. Giesler. The producer event will be held Feb. 20 and 21 at the Dane County fairgrounds in Madison. Thayer is livestock marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, and Giesler is extension animal husbandman of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

The Wisconsin Spring Market Hog Show is open to all Wisconsin junior and adult hog producers. It is designed to provide more information on the meat type hog program to swine producers, meat and allied industries and to consumers. Over $3,000 in premiums will be offered.

Exciting the pigs just before slaughter makes the glycogen picture worse, according to another experiment. Excitement apparently causes the pigs to start converting glycogen into energy to meet the "emergency," then this process continues at a rapid rate after death.

The researchers excited the pigs by prodding them with electric shockers and slappers, duplicating the treatment animals often get when they are being driven to the slaughter floor.

Correct Labeling of Treated Seed Important, Analyst Says

The testing of treated seed grain by the General Laboratory Division of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture indicates some mislabeling, Dwight Forsyth of the department said this week. Of 158 samples tested, 25, or 16 per cent, were found to have errors in labeling.

"We do not consider the 16 per cent as extremely high when we consider this is only the third year of our program testing treated seed," Forsyth said.

When mislabeling is indicated, the department notifies the company involved explaining the laboratory's findings, Forsyth noted. A request to correct the mistake is then made, he stated.

"We believe that it is important for seed companies to understand the requirements of the seed treatment labeling law," Forsyth added.

Although some treated seed carries a dye that will stain the seed, coloring of treated seed is not a requirement of the state seed law, the department seed analyst stated.

Basically all seed labeling is for added. "Everyone responsible for the distribution of seed must take great pains to see that the labeling is 'correct.'"

Faulty Equipment In some cases the seed treating equipment is at fault and unless the individual operating the equipment is aware of the mechanical defect, some of the seed may not be treated even though it has gone through the machine, Forsyth stated.

Other tests indicate that seed treatment labels have been applied to seed which has not been treated, he added. This, he suggested, could also involve a human error.

"We have found that seed companies want to do a good job of labeling and will make the necessary corrections if they are brought to their attention," Forsyth said.

Under present state requirements only seed sold for seeding purposes has to be labeled if it is treated. A large part of the grain seed used in Wisconsin is home-grown. The farmer takes his own grain into the mill where it is cleaned and treated. Since the seed is not to be sold, the mill which treats the seed need not label it as treated, neither does the farmer.

"However," Forsyth pointed out, "we advise mills which treat seed for a farmer customer to apply a label to prevent its being fed to livestock by mistake."

Basically all seed labeling is for

Researchers Find Body Chemistry Of Pig Continues After Slaughter

MADISON — When a hog is slaughtered, his body chemistry doesn't stop immediately, and the chemical changes that take place just after death have a lot to do with how good the meat will be.

Research at the University of Wisconsin in recent years has shown that one of the most important of post-mortem chemical changes is the breakdown of glycogen—animal starch—into mild acids. These acids—though harmless to humans—are undesirable because they bring about the pale, soft, watery condition of the pork that consumers often complain about.

Researchers have known for some time about the glycogen-quality relationship. In earlier work they have shown that it is possible to decrease muscle glycogen and get better pork by exercising the pigs—without exciting them — just before slaughter. They've also shown that a cold water bath just before killing lowers muscle glycogen and improves quality.

The researchers have also deliberately produced pork of very poor quality by feeding the pigs a lot of sugar (glucose) just before slaughter. And they have found that some pigs are more efficient than others at converting blood sugars into glycogen.

Tests Add Details

Recent tests have added more details to the story of muscle glycogen. For one thing, the researchers found that the rate at which glycogen is broken down is more important than the amount of the carbohydrate present to start with. If the acids are produced just before or just after death while the carcass is still at body temperature—they do much more damage than if they are produced later on.

This is easy to understand since chemical reactions go faster at high temperatures. So if the meat is warm the acids "work on" the proteins very rapidly. After chilling, the reactions slow down greatly. So if the acids aren't present at slaughter time or aren't produced quickly after death, they don't do as much harm.

In tests with three swine breeds the research men found some important differences, both in the amount of glycogen present in the muscle and in the rate at which it is broken down. They compared Hampshires, Poland Chinas, and Chester Whites.

Hamps had by far the most glycogen in their muscle tissue—nearly three times as much as the others. However, the rate of glycogen breakdown was slower in Hamps than in Poland Chinas. Though they started with the lowest glycogen content, the Poland Chinas showed the fastest rate of glycolysis and produced more pale, watery pork than the others. The Chester White fell between the other two breeds in amount of glycogen, but had the slowest conversion rate.

Emphasize Difference

The researchers emphasize that these tests were with strains of hogs on the University farm. The findings may not apply to all pigs in any of the breeds.

Just what causes differences in rates of glycogen breakdown isn't clear, the research men say. They suspected that the enzyme phosphorylase might be the key, since it is known to be involved in glycogen changes. But so far they haven't been able to find a direct link. Tests showed no correlation between phosphorylase activity and rate of glycolysis.

In another test the researchers by prodding them with electric shockers and slappers, duplicating the treatment animals often get when they are being driven to the slaughter floor. The animal scientists involved in this work for the past year up for the lack of food. This finding suggests that fasting may be

Correct Labeling of Treated Seed Important, Analyst Says

The testing of treated seed grain by the General Laboratory Division of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture indicates some mislabeling. Dwight Forsyth of the department said this week. Of 158 samples tested, 25, or 16 per cent, were found to have errors in labeling.

"We do not consider the 16 per cent as extremely high when we consider this is only the third year of our program testing treated seed," Forsyth said.

When mislabeling is indicated, the department notifies the company involved explaining the laboratory's findings, Forsyth noted. A request to correct the mistake is then made he stated.

"We believe that it is important for seed companies to understand the requirements of the seed treatment labeling law," Forsyth added. "Everyone responsible for the distribution of seed must take great pains to see that the labeling is 'correct'."

Faulty Equipment

In some cases the seed treating equipment is at fault and unless the individual operating the equipment is aware of the mechanical defect, some of the seed may not be treated even though it has gone through the machine, Forsyth stated.

Other tests indicate that seed treatment labels have been applied to seed which has not been treated, he added. This, he suggested, could also involve a human error.

"We have found that seed companies want to do a good job of labeling and will make the necessary corrections if they are brought to their attention," Forsyth said.

Although some treated seed carries a dye that will stain the seed, coloring of treated seed is not a requirement of the state seed law, the department seed analyst stated.

Basically all seed labeling is for the protection of the consumer or buyer, Forsyth concluded. In the case of treated seed there are several reasons, he said. They were listed as these:

(1) Seed treatment can be a health hazard not only to persons handling the treated seed but also to livestock if the treated seed happens to get into feed by mistake.

(2) It protects the labeler from claims or damages to the extent that he has applied with the law.

State Requirements

Under present state requirements only seed sold for seeding purposes has to be labeled if it is treated. A large part of the grain seed used in Wisconsin is home-grown. The farmer takes his own grain into the mill where it is cleaned and treated. Since the seed is not to be sold, the mill which treats the seed need not label it as treated, neither does the farmer.

"However," Forsyth pointed out, "we advise mills which treat seed for a farmer customer to apply a label to prevent its being fed to livestock by mistake."

Farm Units Directed To Coordinate Work

Agriculture Secretary Freeman Cites 1961 Law in Appeal to FHA, SCS, ASC

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman recently issued a directive to the Farmers Home Administration, Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to coordinate their services at the individual family-farm operator level.

Secretary Freeman noted that the Agricultural Act of 1961 declared it to be the policy of Congress to "recognize the importance of the family farm as an efficient unit of production and as an economic base for towns and cities in rural areas, and encourage, promote and strengthen this form of farm enterprise."

The Farmers Home Administration provides loan funds to farmers unable to obtain adequate credit on reasonable terms from other sources to acquire or develop full or part-time family farms.

than half of these farm-operating families are able to obtain sufficient income from both farm and non-farm sources to provide minimum purchasing power required for an acceptable level of living.

Need More Income

Secretary Freeman pointed out that many of the most inadequate farm situations will have to be reorganized, developed or enlarged to provide an opportunity for the family to make an adequate income, either from full-time farming operations or from farming in combination with available off-farm employment.

"The Dept. of Agriculture, through its non-farm phases of Rural Areas Development, is moving aggressively to help local communities generate new and improved economic opportunities in industrial, commercial, improved natural resources management, and recreational enterprises," Freeman declared.

New Law Effective For Shipping Swine

A new and far-reaching set of regulations for interstate shipments of swine has been put into effect by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

There are no restrictions on healthy hogs shipped interstate for slaughter, but restrictions on hogs that have been infected or exposed to cholera are definite and strict.

Interstate shipment of hogs fed raw garbage is prohibited.

Interstate shipment of virulent hog cholera virus is prohibited after Jan. 1, 1963, and interstate shipment of hogs (except for immediate slaughter) treated with this virus is prohibited after July 1, 1963.

Hogs For Slaughter

Slaughter hogs are handled as usual. There is no restriction on interstate shipment of unexposed hogs for slaughter, as long as they are shipped to a recognized slaughtering center, a public stockyard, or an approved stockyard or livestock market, and are not diverted enroute for any other purpose.

There are certain requirements which feeder pigs and breeding stock must meet if they are shipped across state lines. They include:

1. Officially vaccinated pigs can be shipped interstate to any destination, providing they are identified as such and accompanied by a health certificate.

2. Any pigs, regardless of vaccination status, can be shipped interstate to public or approved stockyards and markets.

Pigs not officially vaccinated also can be shipped interstate to public or approved stockyards and markets.

3. Pigs not officially vaccinated also can be shipped interstate directly to another farm providing they are accompanied by a health certificate and a permit from the state of destination.

Official Vaccination

"Officially vaccinated pigs" are those vaccinated by an accredited veterinarian or a full-time State or Federal inspector. And the pigs must be permanently identified and recorded as official vaccinates by the person who performs the vaccination.

If pigs are vaccinated less than 21 days before shipment, they must be treated with a simultaneous injection of modified live virus vaccine and at least 15 cc.

of anti-hog cholera serum (or 7.5 cc. of antibody concentrate).

If the pigs are vaccinated 21 days or more before shipment, either a killed virus vaccine or a modified live virus vaccine can be used.

If killed vaccines are used, the pigs must have been vaccinated not more than six months prior to shipment; with modified virus vaccines, the time limit is one year.

Certificate of Health

All vaccinated pigs must be inspected prior to shipment and a health certificate issued by either an accredited veterinarian or by State or Federal inspectors.

Pigs which have not been officially vaccinated must be inspected and have a health certificate before they can be shipped interstate to another farm.

In addition, the shipper must obtain from the state of destination a permit authorizing shipment. The shipper must also maintain a closed herd for 21 days prior to shipment and then ship only to farms in states which require a 21-day isolation of imported swine.

Waupaca 4-H Leaders Plan Manawa Meeting

WAUPACA — A meeting of the Waupaca County 4-H Junior Leaders Association is scheduled at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Manawa City Hall.

The planning committee will present the proposed program outline for 1963, E. G. Hoyer, county 4-H agent, said.

4-H Leaders Will Meet in Madison

Sixty local leaders of 4-H clubs across the state will meet at the University of Wisconsin Dec. 12-14 for a livestock leaders' school, according to Quin Kolb, livestock specialist at the University.

The meeting will feature sessions on livestock marketing, feeding and breeding for marketing, and live animal evaluation on present carcass standards.

The local leaders are receiving scholarships to attend from the Wisconsin 4-H Club Foundation.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 12, the group will evaluate live animals for their potential carcass quality.

The Thursday Dec. 13 program features tours to a packing plant in Madison and to a supermarket to study meat merchandizing. Robert Thayer, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders Association will address the group that evening.

The Friday Dec. 14 program will feature a discussion of the carcasses of the beef, sheep and swine in the live animal evaluation contest on Wednesday.

Food Cost Increases

During the last 25 years, the cost of food has increased less than the cost of housing, transportation and rent.

Manure Means Income

Research has shown that the manure from a 50-cow herd can mean as much as $150 a month in increased crop yields, according to the New Holland Grassland News.

Barnyard Manure Has $2.50 Per Ton Value

Cattle Waste Makes Good Fertilizer, Supplies Nitrogen, Potash, Nutrients

BY JOE L. WALKER
Waupaca County Agent

Barnyard manure is worth about $2.50 per ton in terms of fertilizer nutrients it contains.

In some countries manure carries a greater value than it does here. For example, the Japanese farmer spreads manure by hand and his honey bucket wagon bears only one small resemblance, in odor only, to our modern manure spreader. We only realize about one-third of the value of our manure, loss of the liquid portion, loss of nitrogen and potash, loss through leaching and nitrogen lost to the air, all help to reduce this value.

If you were to sit down and figure out the amount of manure produced per animal, you would find that it is quite a sizeable sum. For example, per 1,000 pounds of live weight, the following is produced in a year: dairy cow, 15 tons valued at $2.73 per ton, steers, nine tons valued at $3.61 per ton; hogs, 18 1/4 tons at $2.63 per ton; sheep, 9 tons at $6.33 per ton; and hens, 4 1/4 tons at $7.06 per ton.

Granted, manure varies a great deal in its composition. However, an average ton of barnyard manure supplies 10 pounds of nitrogen, five pounds of phosphorus and ten pounds of potash. This doesn't mean that ten tons of barnyard manure will provide 100 pounds of nitrogen to the corn plants. Instead, much of this nitrogen and the other nutrients as well are tied up in the organic matter and will be released over a period of years, so instead of 100 pounds of nitrogen being made available, only 40 pounds of nitrogen, 35 pounds of phosphate and 70 pounds of potash will be available the first year, the balance later.

As per usual, the best place to spread this manure is on next year's corn ground and, unless the ground is quite sloping or the snow banks get too deep, one might better plan to spread it daily all winter. Daily spreading allows us to make the best use of our labor and also allows us to keep the barnyard clean. Quite a number of tests have been conducted comparing daily spreading versus piling, but daily spreading gave best results by about 10-13 per cent in terms of crop yields.

The greatest value of manure is in the liquid portion, about 50 per cent of the nitrogen, 95 per cent of the phosphorus and 85 per cent potash. This means you are going to have to handle the manure in such a way as to retain this valuable liquid portion. This liquid can be saved by using more straw or other litter. Straw and chopped corn stalks can absorb two to three times their weight in liquids. For a loose housing set up, one might consider hauling in chopped corn stalks to help absorb the liquids and help reduce the pressure on the straw for the balance of the winter months.

In any event we can see manure does have value and the value is based, not only on the kind of manure it is, but on the manner in which we handle it.

Farm Income Behind 1961

Crop Service Says Livestock Drops, Crop Produce Rises

Cash income from products sold by Wisconsin farmers is lagging behind a year ago, according to the Wisconsin Crop Reporting Service.

Wisconsin farmers received an estimated $864,428,000 for products sold from January through September or over $2,000,000 less than a year ago. This total includes $758,047,000 from livestock and livestock products and $106,381,000 from crops. The income from livestock and livestock products dropped about 1 percent from the total for the first three-fourths of 1961 while the total income from crops increased 4 percent. Total cash farm income from the two sources dropped less than 1 percent.

Lower Returns

Most of the drop in cash farm income results from lower returns from milk and eggs. Meat animal prices have been firm. Income from milk alone accounts for the largest share of the returns from livestock and livestock products and usually contributes more than half of the total cash farm income. While income from crops rose four percent over a year ago, it only accounted for 12 percent of the total for the first nine months.

Lower prices for milk more than offset increased milk production compared with a year ago. In October, milk production was up 3 per cent, while milk prices

Farm Bureau Sponsors Informative TV Show

Members and non-members of Outagamie County Farm Bureau will have an opportunity to hear and see some of the details about Farm Bureau's structure, fundamentals, and goals discussed, on television in late November and early December.

Outagamie county farm Bureau is one of seventeen counties in the northeastern section of Wisconsin that is helping sponsor a 25 minute show about Farm Bureau on Channel 7, Wausau, November 30, 11:30 to 11:55 a.m. and a 30 minute show on Channel 2, Green Bay, December 2, 11:15 to 11:45 a.m.

Appearing on the program will be three dairy farmers; namely, Russell O'Harrow, Oconto county, who will discuss Farm Bureau's goal of attaining a high, net, spendable income for farm families; Wilfred Turba, Sheboygan county, who will explain another goal of Farm Bureau's, which is preserving our private, competitive, free enterprise system, and, Harold Sheedy, Brown county, who will discuss the role of farmers and general agriculture in our modern day economy. Ronald Campbell, N. E. District fieldman for Wisconsin Farm Bureau, will serve as moderator and also participate by explaining some of Farm Bureau's fundamentals and structure.

Milk Food Values

Milk is an important source of protein and riboflavin, as well as our most important source of calcium.

fell five percent. Total milk production in the first ten months also shows a gain of 3 percent over the same 1961 period.

Development Report

Net Cash Farm Income Rise Averages $1,279

Farm and Home Development
Agent Outagamie County

I recently received the second Annual State Summary of Farm and Home Development family progress reports which were made this year on two groups of families. A group of 182 families participated in FARM and HOME DEVELOPMENT for three years and another of 312 families participated in FARM and HOME DEVELOPMENT for two years.

Luckow

The report of family progress indicates there is little change in farm size, but that there is a substantial change in both gross income and net cash income achieved by the families. This group increased gross income an average of $2,685 between 1959 and 1961. Net cash income was up an average of $1,279 per farm.

The two year group also made changes, but the total is somewhat less than achieved by the three year group. The total cash income gain made by this group of families averaged $1,224, with a gain in net cash income of $490 per farm.

This report represented about 15 per cent of the total group of families participating in FHD per year. Families participate in the program on an average of three years.

The practice showing the biggest gain was farm financial reports. Eighty-two per cent of the 2 year group and 87 per cent of the three year group made better use of their records.

Other practices which more than one-half of the participating families made improvements in were, use of credit, farm building and home remodeling improvements, participation in ACP practices.

use of soil test, improved roughage quality for dairy feed, improved dairy herd breeding, use of DHIA records and balanced grain feeding for the dairy herd. FHD is essentially a family approach. Families plan together to make desired improvements in the home along with necessary changes to increase farm income.

HEART OF THE GEHL. Big 507 sq. in. grinding chamber gives real capacity. The 66 steel hammers grind all ingredients uniformly ... best for mixing, best for feeding. This bigger screen and more hammers reduce power requirements for grinding.

OPTIONAL CRUSHER-FEEDER HEAD. Acts as both crusher and compression feed roller. Feeds roughage and ear corn into grinder at a steady flow. You can get this feature with or without the swinging auger feeder.

GEHL Mix-All cuts feedmaking costs

The 10,000 owners of Gehl Mix-Alls have found that it's the best money-saving machine they have ever owned. Try it yourself ... you'll save on costs by using your own grain and buying concentrate in quantity. You save the cost of grinding and mixing because you do it yourself. You save grain hauling trips to the mill. You save again by making feed in minutes ... no waiting in line at the mill.

It's easy to make high quality, low cost feeds with a Mix-All. Just load your grain in the swinging auger feeder. Pour the concentrate in the low-mounted concentrate hopper. If you want to add roughage to your ration, toss baled hay slices right into the crusher-feeder. The Mix-All does the rest. In just 20 minutes you'll have two tons of finished feed a commercial mill would be proud to put out. And you can't beat the convenience of grinding and mixing when you want to. You can make a fresh batch in minutes.

You'll like the savings ... many of the 10,000 Mix-All owners report that in just one year they saved enough money on feedmaking costs to pay for their Mix-Alls. Seeing is believing ... so stop in soon for a demonstration of the money-saving, time-saving Gehl Mix-All.

maintain the strength of both agriculture and industry, the university president said.

"We recognize the importance of agriculture, and the fact that a great university is impossible without a strong college of agriculture."

Dr. Harrington lauded the Farm Bureau for its attitude toward education.

"Farm Bureau always has favored our university and higher education in its teaching and research, and you have supported our service activities," he commented.

He suggested that the College of Agriculture through its cooperative extension service will help to solve some of the growing problems of the cities.

"The college, because of its experience, can furnish us many of the clues and some of the personnel," Dr. Harrington said. "The problems of the cities are fantastically great."

A special feature of the dinner program was the presentation of awards in the Farm Bureau's news media contest. The Press-Gazette was the winner among daily newspapers over 40,000 circulation, while station WLWK, also of Green Bay, received the television award.

Other winners were: The Wisconsin Rapids Tribune, dailies under 40,000; The Evansville Review, weekly newspapers, WIBA, Madison, radio stations of 5,000 watts, and WEKZ, Monroe, radio stations under 5,000 watts.

It has been customary for the Farm Bureau to have the newly-elected governor as a dinner guest every two years. This year John Reynolds, who will succeed Gaylord Nelson, was not present, although his name appeared on the program.

Cost of Extension Services Show Sharp Rise Since 1950

The costs of Wisconsin's cooperative extension service, which include the work of the county agents, have more than doubled since 1950, the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance says.

Cooperative extension activities are discussed in the October issue of the Wisconsin Taxpayer, monthly publication of the Alliance. The various extension agents serving Wisconsin include agricultural agents, home agents, 4-H club agents, farm and home development agents and special agents.

Cooperative extension service expenditures amounted to $4.4 million for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1962. The 1950 cost was $1.8 million. Figures include the salaries and travel expenses of the agents but do not include expenses for rent, clerical help and supplies.

The federal, state and county governments each contribute about one-third of the cooperative extension service costs.

Although costs have been increasing, farm population in Wisconsin has been decreasing. It decreased by more than 35 per cent since 1940. During the same period, the number of farms decreased 30 per cent.

As Wisconsin's population became more urban, the programs acknowledge any of our invitations," said Percy Hardiman, Hartland, the Farm Bureau president.

Delivering his annual message, Hardiman challenged farmers to make bold decisions.

"I suggest for a means to higher net farm income devoid of political meddling and political price fixing, that we abandon controls and quotas and set a schedule for the withdrawal of government from this field of guaranteed price," he proposed.

Retire Farm Units

Hardiman advocated the retirement of farm units, rather than parts of farms, from production.

"Only whole production units should be removed to avoid leaving too small an operation and offsetting the intensive use of the better land, which would defeat the program."

"As adjustment takes place, the level of price supports would need to be reduced to avoid putting taxpayers in the position of providing funds for adjustment on one and encourage production on the other," Hardiman explained.

of the cooperative extension service were revised to keep pace with the changing population.

For example, the agricultural agent previously spent nearly all of his time dealing with livestock and crop improvement programs. His duties now also include such programs as community development and public affairs. Of the young people in 4-H club work, 20 per cent now reside in cities, villages and other urban areas.

Extension programs are carried out in all of Wisconsin's 72 counties. About 258 agents serve in the counties. In addition, there are about 100 full-time state extension staff members and specialists.
